Figs Come, Flying Welcome, Prizefighters Mixed News Wheat Again

Current Events

FROM N. H. SLOANE, general manager of the California Development Association, this writer received on Thursday a letter by flying machine, and with it a box of ripe California figs, picked in California at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Sloane says: "Mayor Hylan, now here, says ripe figs have not yet been delivered in perfect condition in New York. California will develop the great commercial flying machine by its endeavor to put ripe and perishable fruit upon the tables of New York."

THAT'S progress. But that's only a small part of it. Flying machines will bring perishable ripe fruits from California and Florida to those that can afford them. And, infinitely more important, flying machines will carry inhabitants in a few hours from all over the United States to California, to Florida and to all the places that Americans ought to see.

MR. SIKI, once a Senegalese savage, hopping around the jungle in Africa, now a "distinguished prize fighter," came to the United States leaving behind a young white woman and THEIR baby. He says he did not marry her.

Not discouraged, he has just married a young woman in the United States said to have "a trace" of colored blood.

Another prize fighter, white, named Firpo, arrived from South America with a young woman called a "stenographer." He comes in, she is deported.

Why? The answer is simple. He will make $250,000 as his share of a million dollar prize fight. Why shouldn't he come in?

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE might ask why immigration officials, that separate mothers from their children at Ellis Island, welcome prize fighters under conditions that should mean instant deportation?

A republic that shuts out ambitious, respectable men and women, mechanics, farmers, mothers, children and admits any prize fighter under any circumstances has something the matter with it.

HOW WILL the news of our day read to the future?

Bethlehem Steel passes its dividend—a combined pocket and heartache for many.

LOZADO, a Filipino murderer, is electrocuted. He failed to kill a jailer with a club hidden in his cell, carefully made a will disposing of a few hundred dollars.

TWENTY women are hurt in a bargain rush, trying to buy brooms for one cent apiece.

In Chile, an archeologist discovers a mummy, one of the royal Incas, 2,000 years old. It wore false hair.

High Commissioner Samuel of Palestine reports excellent progress in the rebuilding of the Jewish state. An American has just gone over to start a life insurance company. What part of all this is news?

RUSSIAN reports show a big shortage in the grain crop of 140,000,000 poods, nearly three million tons of grain. The Bolshevik government will spend fifteen millions to buy seed for farmers, other millions to feed the hungry.

As far away as Russia, nature seems waiting to help Coolidge by putting up the price of grain.

IN CHICAGO yesterday wheat and other grains again went up. If that continues it will be hard for the farmer to keep his mind on his troubles.

OGDEN L. MILLS, prosperous youth, campaigning for Coolidge, will ask this political question every day: "Why turn them out?"

He will ask voters how they expect to do any better by getting rid of Coolidge and taking in Davis.

Mr. Mills should remember the illiterate Greek citizen voting to banish Aristides "because I am tired of hearing him called 'The Just.'"

Many voters vote for a change just for the SAKE OF "A CHANGE."

OUR FRIENDS in Paris say they "suspect" that Secretary Hughes in London "in the interest of American bankers." How suspicious those Frenchmen are. Soon they will be suggesting that Thomas Lamont, of Morgan & Co., is in London also in the interest of American bankers.

New Pacifist Group Opening Campaign Today. Sharply Condemned

Washington, July 26.—President Coolidge today rebuked as "unfair" those who have "condemned out of hand, simply through the device of misrepresentation," the plans of the government for observance of National Defense Day on September 12."

The President presented his comment in the form of a letter to Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, an organization which inaugurated today a campaign in behalf of world cooperation for peace and which had asked the President to endorse the movement.

Declaring he had been "unqualifiedly sympathetic with the aim and purpose to make war, so nearly as might be, an impossibility in this world," the President in his letter made public at the White House, said he could not detect "any inconsistency in giving my approval to the program of defence day."

MEANS TO EFFICIENCY.

"I wish crime might be abolished, but I would not therefore abolish courts and police protection," he added.

"I wish war might be made impossible; but I would not leave my country unprotected meanwhile.

"The defence test seems to me a means to assure the fullest efficiency to the extremely modest defence force our country maintains."

The President's letter, dated July 23, follows:

"My Dear Mr. Libby:

"Some days ago I received a letter from yourself, as executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War, informing me that that organization is preparing for a campaign in behalf of world

American Consulate in Brazil Damaged By Wild Shells

Washington, July 26 (I. N. S.).—The American consulate at Sao Paulo has been struck by shells in the battle between Brazilian rebels and government forces, it was announced today by the State Department following receipt of official advices from Brazil.

The shells damaged the consulate building, but no American lives were lost.

COX CRUISE IS OFF; YACHT HITS ROCK

Word of an accident to the yacht on which Governor Channing Cox and a party of friends have been cruising in the North Atlantic reached Boston today.

The yacht, the Una, owned by Frank Childs, struck on a rock while groping her way through a fog off the southwestern coast of Nova Scotia.

Apparently the members of the party were not in grave danger.

The accident put an end to the cruise. The yacht was put into Halifax, N. S., and will be laid up in dry dock for some time.

Governor Cox and his friends had meant to steam along the St. Lawrence River. Word from Halifax today was to the effect that the Governor planned to return to Boston early next week.

GRAND JURY HAS R. I. BOMBING

Providence, July 26.—By order of Judge Hahn of the Superior Court, the Grand Jury of Providence County will convene on August 4 to investigate planting of gas bombs in the Rhode Island Senate Chamber on the morning of June 19.

In signing the order for the investigation today, Judge Hahn did not attempt to set a time limit.

It will be possible for the Grand Jury to delay its finding until after the November elections, a fact pointed out by politicians.

Presumably the witnesses before the jury will include Thomas Lally, a sporting man of Brooklyn, and Matthew McGovern of Dorchester.

William "Tootsie" Murray also is expected to appear. His attorney, A. V. Pettine, has promised to produce him when he is wanted.

For weeks there has been popular clamor for a judicial investigation of the bomb outrage.

Claims and counter claims of political influence have been hurled.

In well-advised circles today there was a feeling that the Grand Jury probe ordered by Judge Hahn might mean much or little.

Albert to Greet Hughes

Brussels, July 26.—Secretary of State Hughes will be received by King Albert and entertained at dinner by the Belgian royal family during his coming visit, to Brussels, it was announced today.

HINT 'PLOT' IN FRANKS TESTIMONY

Defence Counsel Says Witness Made Effort to "Intimidate Court"

Chicago, July 26 (A.P.).—Dr. William J. Healy of Boston and Dr. Benjamin Gluck, New York, alienists, were added to the staff of the defence today in the hearing of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnapers and murders of fourteen-year-old Robert Franks.

Their presence, it was said, presaged a hard court fight for the lives of the defendants when they have their innings next week.

Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defence, announced that Dr. Healy is director of the Baker Foundation of Boston, and is a specialist in juvenile delinquency.

He said Dr. Gluck was formerly examining alienist at Sing Sing, New York, and more recently attached to the municipal courts in New York. He, too, is active in juvenile delinquents.

Insinuating that the State's testimony which credited Leopold with a desire to plead guilty before a "friendly judge" was a fabrication, Attorney Darrow struck hard today at this evidence.

It was the first time since the boys pleaded guilty to the kidnaping and murder of Robert Franks that their counsel had challenged the truth of any material fact brought out by the st

SAYS LYNN SHOE UNION RIGHT

Mayor Harland A. McPhetres of Lynn in a report made public today, made a clean-cut finding for the Amalgamated Shoe Workers in his efforts to find a peaceful way out and avert a strike in the controversy between the Amalgamated and rebel and independent shoe unions, including the lasters, mixed locals, packers and stock fitters.

The Mayor finds principal difficulties are regarding internal union matters, which he says should be settled harmoniously within the amalgamated organization. He says that whatever objection the rebel or any groups may have to the State Board of Arbitration settlement, they were parties to it and to the making of the new peace agreement by a referendum vote and should carry it out.

Under no circumstances should there be a strike or any kind of cessation of work, which he states would work great injury to the shoe industry and hinder its improvement.

Neither side is bound to accept his recommendation, which, backing up the Amalgamated on virtually every point, are known to be acceptable to it, but whether the rebel faction will now strike remains to be seen.

William M. Hogan, former City Councillor of Cambridge, who had started serving a sentence of one year in the House of Correction for accepting a bribe of $800 from Abe R. ORDER OUT FOR BIG KLAN MEET

One of the biggest Ku Klux Klan demonstrations in Massachusetts was scheduled to take place in a field in North Reading today.

Klan captains received the following instructions from the promoters of the meeting:

"Go to Reading square, take Lowell road from square and go along to crossroads with blacksmith shop on left. Turn right, go three-tenths of a mile, turn to left and obey guards. Look for white arrows. Go the way tail of arrow points. Guards all have paper in their hands."

A copy of the instructions fell into the hands of a citizen not a member of the Klan.

It was rumored that the meeting was to last well into the night; that a fiery cross was to be lighted after dark, and that Mayor Curley was to be burned in effigy.

SLAYERS SMILING IN FACE OF GALLOWS

BOSTON DOCTOR IS CALLED TO AD DEFENCE OF FRANKS SLAYERS

CHARGE ATTEMPT TO INTIMIDATE COURT

James J. Cortland, detective sergeant, drew the fire of the defence attorney.

After testifying that all other witnesses had been excluded and Leopold had been recorded in some way in notes or reports, the witness admitted that the "friendly judge" remarks had not been put down either in writing or shorthand.

"Isn't it true that this whole story of the conversation in which you said Nathan hoped for a prison sentence by a plea of guilty before a 'friendly judge' was a pure fabrication concocted for the purpose of intimidating the court?" Darrow asked.

"It is not," declared Cortland.

The action of the defense counsel was in the nature of a challenge of the testimony of Hartland in which virtually every statement the latter had made was examined to the most minute detail.

Mr. Darrow started his cross-examination by drawing out a history of Cortland's work in the police department. Cortland's work seemed to have been chiefly clerical and stenographic.

"You have been called on, then, for twelve years to take statements from accused persons?" asked Mr. Darrow.

"That is correct," said Cortland.

He explained the usually terse phrase by clerical dictation of a typewriter.

TESTS QUESTIONER'S MEMORY.

"Did you do that in this case?"

"No, sir. I made no attempt," said Cortland.

Mr. Darrow called for these notes and then allowed that the sergeant had not taken notes on all his talks with Leopold. Some of the talks were in shorthand and others in writing.

"You carried some of those things in your head a week before you undertook to write," asked Mr. Darrow.

"That is correct," said Cortland.

Cortland said he started about a week after the two men were under arrest. He took up an account of his whole connection with the case of his whole connection with the several typewritten pages of notes.

Mr. Darrow tested the sergeant's memory as to the minute details of his movements while he was in the city from prosecutor's office to hotels and restaurants.

Cortland read from his notes: "Leopold said: 'If my folks send me to hang I will go before a jury and they would surely hang me.' Then before a friendly judge and plead guilty I will get off with life in prisonment. You know I have some ideas that would help the world."

Mr. Darrow brought out that this was typed at Cortland's home when no one else present.

"You never gave a copy to anyone?"

"No, sir."

"You talked this over with others?"

"Yes, with newspaper reporters, with relatives at Portland, Ill., on a visit to Bloomington, Ill., and with citizens on the street."

HINTS "INTIMIDATION"

"There is no memorandum on this to any of your official reports?" asked Mr. Darrow of the witness.

"I made a report to the general superintendent of police on this case, but don't remember whether the 'friendly judge' remarks were incorporated in that report," said Cortland.

The witness was asked to look for it in that report but found no mention of it.

"Mr. Cortland, will Darrow, "don't you think this conversation about a 'friendly judge' was a fabrication, amounting to the subject of intimidating the court?"

"No, sir," said Cortland.

"That is all," said Mr. Darrow.

Mr. Crowe had the witness affirm that the letter mentioned was "friendly judge" letter and that on Thursday night after he was told he would be called to the stand the next day.

IDENTIFIES GLASSES

Again Mr. Darrow returned to attack.

"Do you know the name of the detail with your conversation with Leopold at the Cook County jail?" "no mention of the remark about the 'friendly judge' has been made."

"Well, in that conversation," Cortland started.

"That is not my question," interrupted Mr. Darrow. He repeated the query and Cortland answered affirmatively.

"That is all," said Mr. Darrow and Cortland left the stand.

Loeb and Leopold Joke About Pretty Girls in Court

Chicago, July 26.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, the two Franks slayers, came into court today with all their customary sang froid.

They joked and chatted in the "bull pen" room while waiting for court to open.

They discussed the pretty girls that daily come to the trial.

The one with the black hat on yesterday was one little peach, said Nathan Jr. He sighed. "Little peaches" are not likely to play much of a part in the rest of his life.

Nathan had just come from the jail barber shop.

"I barely escaped with these," he said, indicating his long Valentino sideburns.

He was followed by Jacob Weinstein, an optician, called to identify glasses found near the culvert, in which Franks body was hidden.

The weird moral code of young Leopold, built upon the strange foundation that "murder is no crime, the crime is in getting caught," was spread upon the records of the trial today, and the attorneys for the young collegians looked upon it as one of their best cards.

They are going to ask when the proper time comes:

"How can anyone reading such a code as that be anything but pathologically insane?"

The dapper young student did not squirm, when Detective Sergeant James C. Cortland testified to the lack of feeling which characterized his demeanor after he was arrested and confessed that he bashed in the boy's head with a chisel and stuffed his naked body into a water drain. I asked him," said Cortland, "Aren't you sorry for little Bobby Franks?' and he said, 'No! A little girl I feel sorry for, but not a boy.'

"Psychological facts" residing in those lack of emotion and other unusual mental traits which the defense contends, for the most part, are attitudes and be shown in the testimony by Dr. Hinrich Hoyer and Dr. J. Wilson Hall of Chicago, defense alienists, according to an authoritative information obtained today.

Extensive tests made by weeks by the aides of defense alienists show that neither Leopold nor Loeb are insane. It was learned.

MARX OUTLINES DEMANDS OF GERMANY

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Paris, July 26.—Premier Herriot's proposal for a settlement of the reparations question on the basis of the Dawes report was discussed at the meeting of the Allied premiers today.

There is not as yet any program in full, Herriot explained, but he will submit to the provisions pertaining to Germany's ability to pay, according to Germany's own statements as well which are interested in seeing Germany to carry those burdens.

In this cautious statement, delivered in the Reichstag by the pro-government coalition parties as a whole, Herriot accepted in principle the New German formulation of the issue but reserving the Dawes plan for the benefit of the London conference.

The declaration was given in the name of the Marx cabinet as to the cabinet's policy and was forced by the Nationalists in spite of violent opposition to present it.

The presuppositions on which Germany's capacity to pay depends, according to the declaration and for which Chancellor Marx has pledged himself to work, may be put down as follows:

1.—The economic and financial sovereignty of the government must be restored in all Germany.

2.—The Ruhr must be occupied economically as well as militarily.

3.—Treaty rights must be restored to all occupied regions.

4.—Exiled Germans must be returned.

5.—All prisoners must be freed.

At the same time the declaration asserted that the Dawes plan goes far beyond the terms of the Versailles Treaty and cannot be forced upon Germany by ultimatum but can be accepted under free contract.

Dinkle Is Shifted

New Haven, July 26.—Captain Donald G. Dinkle of the First Cavalry from Camp Marfa, Texas, has been assigned here to the First Squadron Cavalry, Connecticut National Guard.

AGE AND YOUTH IN STRIKING CONTRAST

LEOPOLD'S FATHER IN COURT

The father of the youth held for murder of the Franks boy bows his head in grief at the realization of the enormity of his son's crime. Note the difference in the bearing of young Loeb in the adjoining photograph—jocular, confident and half smiling, apparently undisturbed by his position in this tragedy.

YOUNG LOEB ON WAY TO TRIAL

Here's one of the wealthy slayers being escorted from jail to the court room carefully shackled to a deputy sheriff. Loeb and Leopold are guarded as they sit together in the court room "bull pen." They have thus far followed proceedings with grins, sneers and open laughter.

Crime Expert Gives Proof of Franks' Slayers' Sanity

In this article which Dr. Sumon has written on the slayers of little Robert Franks, the criminologist shows conclusively by one of the most important legal tests of responsibility that Leopold and Loeb are sane.

By DR. CARLETON SIMON,
Special Deputy Police Commissioner, and Criminologist of the New York City Police Department.
Copyright, 1924, by Star Co.

THE public conscience aroused by the brutality of the murder of Robert Franks would find a balm in Chicago in seeing the murderers executed, but the question is:

IS TOO GREAT WEALTH RESPONSIBLE?

The question who killed Franks, the murder—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb—is settled. The only doubt left is whether the two young degenerates are sane enough to be executed for the crime.

Is the question of sanity to be decided by the amount of money the prosecution or defense can command to hire experts? Shall the question of life or death depend upon the length of purse of the parents of the murderers?

IS SUPER-EDUCATION RESPONSIBLE?

Both murderers were more than average. They were scholars, although far beyond the age in their studies. They were super-educated. They knew medical book learning. They studied night and day. They knew Nietzsche and Spengler and Haeckel and Freud and Marx and Darrow. Much of life—more than was good for them.

IS LACK OF MORAL TRAINING RESPONSIBLE?

Neither Leopold nor Loeb had any special moral training. Both were reared by good parents, but no spiritual stress seems to have been laid on a code of morals nor is there any evidence to show that they received religious training.

PERHAPS NOT PERTINENT

These questions are pointed to the average person because so much stress has been placed on them and in the separate accounts of these second sources. To the professional mind slightly above average in intelligence they are not pertinent. They do not go to the root of the matter. They do not touch the real question of their responsibility.

A man may have too much wealth or too much culture to be normal, have what may be termed a supereducation, be over-civilized, have been in an atmosphere of luxury and of excess of every material nature.

BUT EVEN THUS HE DOES NOT HAVE TO BE A MURDERER IT IS ONLY THE ABNORMAL, THE UNUSUAL, THE STARTLING, WHICH BREAKS INTO PUBLIC PRINT. WE DO NOT HEAR OF THE THOUSANDS OF WEALTHY YOUTHS WHO ARE PRECOCIOUS STUDENTS, SOME REARED IN A MORE OR LESS LAX MORAL ATMOSPHERE, BUT WHO, NEVETHELESS, ARE LAW-ABIDING CITIZENS AND A CREDIT TO THEIR COMMUNITIES.

The fact of too much wealth or super-education is beside this issue. The question facing us and the court is merely:

"Are Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb insane?"

Yesterday I stated they were not. They are sane men who committed murder—sane when all the evidence available is carefully studied from the viewpoint of the alienist and criminologist.

However, in determining their sanity, one must take into account every factor which may have influenced them in their acts. And in doing so, one must find in their early life-long education and the environments in which they have lived many individual factors that contributed to their criminal acts.

It is certain that these factors, which contribute necessarily to their insanity.

One of the most important legal tests of responsibility for criminal acts where the question of sanity is involved is summarized in this question:

"Did the individual recognize that he was doing, and if so, did he know it was wrong?"

BOTH LEOPOLD AND LOEB KNEW WHAT THEY WERE DOING. THEIR CAREFUL PLANS ARE PROOF OF THAT. ALSO THE INGENIOUS MEANS THEY DEVISED FOR EVADING DETECTION GIVE AMPLE EVIDENCE THAT THEY KNEW THEIR ACT WAS WRONG.

In their confessions of the crime and the various steps taken in the perpetration—willfully made with no duress or so-called "third degree" methods—these young students have remarkable use and with what deliberate premeditation their plans were made and carried out.

CUNNING IS CLEAR

This was especially evidenced by their painstaking preparations, by the methodical and cunningly laid scheme for stealing a typewriter on which to write the note demanding ransom, by their making rough drafts of all letters and notebook figures in advance, so they would be so sure in their plans and by their composing several days before the actual kidnaping of Franks, the ransom note demanding $10,000.

Another proof of their cool premeditation was shown in the purchase of the chisel and the rope found in the murder car, and the provision obtaining of hydrocloric acid wherewith to burn the face of the murdered boy so that his features could not be recognized or identified.

These murderers also procured rags for the purpose of gagging their victim; they provided themselves with a pair of field glasses with which to watch various boys at a distance until they were able to select from among those at play a promising victim.

PLANNED FOR MONTHS.

In order to prevent their being traced they transferred all the automobiles intended for the killing into the rented car. It is admitted by them that these plans occupied their attention for many months before the actual slaying.

One of the lads even provided himself with rubber boots to enable him to deposit the body of the victim in a swamp or lake without getting his own clothes wet.

THIS CRIME WAS PLANNED

SAYS BROTHERS SLEW PARENTS 14 YEARS AGO

Coatesville, Pa., July 26.—Two brothers were under arrest, today charged by a third with the murder of their parents in Lancaster, Pa., fifteen years ago.

Benjamin F. Dorsheimer, an Atlantic City real estate dealer, was arrested as he stepped from a train here to visit friends. Chester A. Dorsheimer, treasurer of a manufacturing concern at York, Pa., was arrested in that city today.

The accusing brother is Frank E. Dorsheimer, of Thorndale, near here. The other brothers deny the charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dorsheimer, the parents, were found dead in their home from gas asphyxiation on April 16, 1910. Dorsheimer was a wealthy liquor dealer.

Chester A. Dorsheimer at York, in denying the brother's charge, said he questioned his mental balance.

Frank said he had deferred bringing the charges because important witnesses always refused to talk about the case, but that as years passed, they became more free in their conversations.

COUZENS NEW HEAD OF SENATE PROBING BODY

Washington, July 26.—A meeting today of the Senate select committee authorized to investigate the Internal Revenue Bureau resulted in the formal resignation of Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, as its chairman, his replacement by Senator Couzens, Republican, Michigan, and a decision for a resumption of the inquiry September 2.

$10,000 Fire in Douglas

Douglas, July 26.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed a large cattle barn, grain sheds, a corn crib, a cow, a pig and valuable farm machinery on the estate of Walter Parker here today. The loss was $10,000.

WITH A MINUTENESS OF DETAIL AND WITH PRECAUTIONS TO ELUDE DETECTION SO ELABORATE AS TO BE UNPARALLELED IN RECENT CRIM

All of these acts, all of these minute and precise preparations, give us a positive answer to the first and important legal test of responsibility for criminal acts where the question of sanity is involved.

"Did the individual recognize what he was doing, and if so, did he know it was wrong?"

HEART-BROKEN, BLAMES WIFE AS HE DIES

Worcester, July 26.—As he lay dying in his home at No. 244 Pleasant street today, Omer Ball, thirty-eight-year-old factory worker, called his landlady to his bedside and gasped out:

"My wife is to blame for it all."

Then he lapsed into unconsciousness and died within a few minutes.

H. L. Simonds said heart trouble superinduced by severe mental strain was the cause.

Dissension arose between Ball and his wife some years ago. Last November the husband was granted a divorce on the ground of desertion.

Mrs. Della Ball, the pretty wife, sought to have the decree vacated. Judge Forbes heard her petition last week in Probate Court.

Mrs. Ball testified that early in January she went to Ball's boarding place and in response to his summons, he having suffered an attack of heart trouble. She left the house late at night, she testified.

Alfred Ritchie, with whom Ball made his home, said Mrs. Ball returned to her husband voluntarily and remained there.

After the court hearing, Ball's condition became worse. He prayed constantly that his worries might end, according to Mrs. Ritchie, the landlady.

Detective James Burke is investigating the case.

DEFENCE DAY CRITICS SCORED BY PRESIDENT

co-operation for peace, to begin July 26-27 on the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the great war.

SOUGHT ENDORSEMENT.

"It is intended to be a great outpouring of the genuine peace sentiment of America. We believe it to be in harmony with your own purposes as expressed on many occasions. We respectfully ask your endorsement of the demonstration."

In reply, by my direction, the secretary to the President wrote to you, saying:

"The President asks me to acknowledge receipt of your letter of June 30, with the assurance of his most hearty sympathy for every practical proposal to minimize the danger of war.

"As you know he has repeatedly expressed himself in this sense and you may be sure of his continued and most genuine friendliness for every worthy and effective effort along these lines."

MEANING I SCONFUSED.

"As is well known to all persons who have done me the honor to familiarize themselves with my public expression on this subject, I have been unqualifiedly sympathetic with the aim and purpose to make war, so far as might be, an impossibility in this world. Doubtless this is a counsel of perfection not to be realized without much earnest effort; to that effort, when guided along feasible lines, I have repeatedly pledged myself assistance.

"It is now brought to my attention that your organization is profoundly concerned because of the assumption that the plans for a national defense test on September 12th constitute a militaristic gesture. This assumption seems to be based chiefly on a confusion of terms.

"In some unofficial and entirely unauthorized way, the defense test has been denominated, 'mobilization day.' The government did not do this.

FAILED TO UNDERSTAND.

"It would be proper to call it inspection day,' but it is not a mobilization, and the government is not responsible for such a designation. As a result some well meaning people have misconstrued its object and purposes, assuming that a nation-wide distribution of forces, and of the civilian and industrial resources available for national defense is to be carried out on that day. This, of course, is far from the truth.

"The constitution and the law contemplate the maintenance of a defense establishment, which in time of peace always has been and ought in proportion to our national power and interests, one of the smallest in the world. I have taken an oath to support the constitution and to execute the laws of the United States. I could do this by maintaining a large standing army. I am opposed to any such plan.

WANTS SMALL ARMY.

"I am trying to work out a method by which we can have, constantly, as we now have, an exceedingly small army, and leave our citizens free from that burden by letting them assume their own responsibility for a defensive establishment sufficient to provide for domestic peace and order, and national defense.

"Instead of being a military gesture, this plan is the exact opposite. It is a non-militaristic gesture for the purpose of keeping down to its lowest possible point the professional military organization of the United States.

MANY ARE MISLED

"What is proposed for September 12th is merely a compliance with the purposes of the National Defense Act of 1920. It is not a mobilization and the people who first attached to it the term 'mobilization day' and then proceeded to condemn it, have been utterly unfair. Most of them, I am sure, have been 'innocent' of any intent to be unfair, but they have been misled.

"Profoundly hoping that the outlawing of war from the world may be accomplished, I am yet unable to detect any inconsistency in giving my approval to the program of Defence Day.

"I wish crime might be abolished but I would not therefore abolish courts and police protection. I wish war might be made impossible, but I would not leave my country unprotected meanwhile.

"The defence test seems to me a means to assure the fullest efficiency to the extremely modest defense force our country maintains."

BISHOP LAWRENCE HEADS PETITION TO FREE ROLLINS BOYS

INNOCENT, CLAIM FOR BROTHERS

Release of Men Serving Life Terms Asked in Appeal Sent to State House

A new petition for the release of Charles and George Rollins, who are serving life sentences for murder was filed at the Governor's office today.

Bishop Lawrence.

The name of Bishop William Lawrence of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts heads the list of signers.

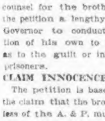
Other names are those of Sheriff John A. Kellher of Suffolk County, Major Thomas L. Walsh, Judge Thomas H. Connelly, Charles C. Beebe and George Winthrop Sargent.

Major Walsh and Judge Connelly, counsel for the brothers, filed with the petition a lengthy request to the Governor to conduct an investigation of his own to satisfy himself as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoners.

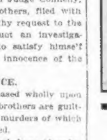
CLAIM INNOCENCE.

The petition is based wholly upon the claim that the brothers are guiltless of the A. & P. murders of which they stand convicted.

It is set forth that Jesse Murphy,



George Rollins.



Charles Rollins

notorious gunman, has confessed the killings for which they are paying the penalty.

The case has been in the courts and the newspapers for years. Murphy's confession has been subjected to searching examination. Through it all, the petitioners maintain, he has stuck to his version of the killings.

It has been the position of the prosecution that Murphy is doing a life term in a Pennsylvania penitentiary and confessed to the murders to save the Rollins boys, knowing it could mean no added punishment for himself.

SEEN BY COUNCIL.

Only recently the Rollins boys were visited by members of the Governor's council. They again declared their innocence.

Sheriff Kellher had both prisoners under his jurisdiction at Charles street jail for a time and has talked with them under all sorts of conditions.

The Rollins petitions arrived at the Governor's office at 11:40. They will be automatically referred to the parole board for an investigation and a statement of facts will be made to Governor Cox. Frank Brooks is chairman of the parole board.

A letter from Major Walsh said he was about to sail for Europe and that he would take the matter up on his return.

20 MORE TO BE ACCUSED OF TARRING GIRL

Victim of Mob Tells How a Jealous Wife Stripped Her Clothing

Frederick, Md., July 26.—With one woman and eight men already under bond, warrants today were issued for twenty more men in connection with the tarring and feathering of Miss Dorothy Grandon, twenty years old, alleged "vampire," of Meyersville.

Although in Meyersville only a few witnesses testified at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Mary Shank and the eight men accused, that the girl, "with her bobbed hair and flapperish ways demoralized the masculine population of Meyersville, young and old alike."

Mrs. Shank, who led the unmasked party that stripped the girl of her clothing and then applied tar and feathers to her body, admitted in court that she was the ringleader of the affair and that she sought only to save her home from the girl's advances.

MERCHANTS IN MOB.

A mob of fifty business men and leading citizens of Meyersville were merely "helping" her, she said.

Mrs. Shank and the eight men were held under bond of $2000 each for the action of the Grand Jury.

Mrs. Shank is charged with assault and battery and feathering.

"They beat me and beat me," Miss Grandon said, punctuating her testimony with sobs. "I got down on my knees and prayed to them and God for mercy. But they kept on. They stripped me of all my clothes and Mary poured on the tar and rubbed it in with feathers."

"That the entire population of the village since the arrival last Thursday of the Grandon girl were willing and ready to adopt a means that has now been used to "run the girl out of town," was admitted in the testimony of the accused men.

SEES WIFE HUSBAND.

Mrs. Shank testified that when she saw her husband in a buggy along the road early in the evening with the arm of the Grandon girl about him, she "could stand it no longer."

"I went out after her with a stick," she said. "The men just collected. It was time. I was ready for anything and I know I was.

"I found her about an hour later walking on the road. She shook her fist at me—right in my very nose—and I hit her over the head with the stick. She sank down in the road like a woman and I threw the stick away.

"We fought with our hands for a long time and I got the best of her. The men just stood around and watched.

"It was I who poured tar on her and it was I who put the feathers on. What sin got her night was what was coming to her."

That was the statement of Mrs. Shank, whose husband, she declared, had been with the Grandon girl Friday, Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Miss Grandon testified that Mrs. Shank urged the men to beat her more. She denied that the woman's story insults as well as tar.

"When automobiles went past us," she said, "Mary would holler for the girls' laughs, boys, and look her over; she isn't very pretty now.' Oh! They insulted me as I have never been insulted before.

Mrs. Candler was formerly a public stenographer here. She has not lived with her husband since the raid.

Coincident with the announcement of the cash settlement came the filing of a suit for $25,000 against Asa G. Candler, Jr., son of the multimillionaire, and Walter T. Candler, by attorneys for Clyde K. Byfield of Decatur, Ga.

This suit asks damages for alleged humiliation suffered when the Candlers made an attempt forcibly to take a note for $25,000 from Byfield. The suit grew out of an alleged attack said to have been made by young Candler on Byfield's wife aboard a trans-Atlantic liner.

In Love Tangle

MRS. MARGARET HUNTINGTON

New York, July 26 (Universal).—He had thought he was off with the old love legally, and so he was on with the new.

But the old love refused to remain in the "off" position.

Mary Clinton Hall, of New York and Palm Beach society, has started to unravel what she hopes will be the last of her divorce tangles.

She filed a suit for divorce against Clinton M. Hall, wealthy broker and named Mrs. Margaret Huntington correspondent.

Mrs. Hall caused trouble for Hall when she got a court to nullify the divorce he had obtained in March, 1923. The trouble was due to the fact that after the Halls were divorced Hall had married Mrs. Huntington.

When Mrs. Hall succeeded in nullifying the divorce, she resumed her position as his wife. And there he was in the uncomfortable situation of living with Mrs. Huntington.

And now the latter has become co-respondent in the divorce case of the man whom she so recently had regarded as her lawful husband.

BIGGEST SHIP REPAIR JOB TO FORE RIVER

Rivadavia, 28,000-Ton Argentine Warship, to Be Overhauled

The Argentine 28,000-ton battleship Rivadavia will arrive in Boston early next month to undergo a complete overhauling. The battleship will be docked at the Fore River Ship Yards and work will be started Sept. 1.

She will be provided with a new oil burning system and new steam boilers. The furnishings on the boat will also be refitted. It is understood the ship will also be painted throughout.

When the Rivadavia is completed another battleship from Argentina will arrive here for the same repairs. The second ship will be the Mareno.

Fore River officials say this is the largest ship repair contract signed in this country since the war. The officials refused to state whether the new work would result in more jobs for the ship yard workers.

E. BOSTONIAN CUTS PRICE OF GASOLINE

Begins Selling at 18 Cents on Monday; Quigley Going Strong in Chelsea

Chelsea's experiment in selling gasoline is beginning to have an effect beyond the confines of that city.

Today Thomas Cress, proprietor of the Belle Isle filling station at No. 1014 Bennington street, East Boston, announced that, beginning Monday, he will sell gas at eighteen cents, a reduction of three cents.

"I want to get into line with Mayor Quigley of Chelsea," he explained.

"In New York they are selling gas at fourteen cents. It is possible to sell it for eighteen cents a gallon here and make a profit.

"My lowering of the price is not a passing whim. I plan to keep my prices indefinitely. They may go even lower."

In the meantime, the Chelsea Mayor announces he will keep up the municipal filling station experiment until prices come down all over Chelsea and in adjoining communities.

$10,000 GEMS IN BACK BAY AUTO THEFT

Jewels valued at $10,000 were stolen today from the automobile of Kinley Tener, nephew of former Governor of Pennsylvania while the machine was standing in Trinity Court, Back Bay, according to the Boston police.

The jewels and other valuables were in a large black suitcase marked "E. P. T.," which was strapped to the motor car. The straps were cut and the suit case with contents removed. These contents included many diamond rings and valuable toilet articles.

At the time of the theft Mr. Tener, whose home is in Beaver road, Bensalem, Penn., had just returned from a visit with his wife to Mrs. George Tener at Eastern Point, Gloucester. They were en route home and had stopped for a brief visit at Trinity Court.

The machine was left unguarded for a few minutes, but the thieves worked fast and left no traces.

When Mr. Tener returned to his car he noticed his loss and at once notified the police. After reporting the theft Mr. Tener resumed his trip home with his wife. This theft is one of the richest hauls made by motor thieves who have been operating in Boston recently.

DRIVER WHO HIT 4 CHILDREN ARRAIGNED

Arthur Keohane of Prescott street, East Boston, charged with operating the automobile that crashed into a house on Sumner street, injuring four children, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in East Boston Court today for drunkenness.

Two additional charges were preferred, operating an automobile while under the influence, and operating an automobile so as to endanger lives.

Attorney Thomas F. Rice, for Keohane, asked for a continuance until next week, which was granted.

Arthur Stasolo of No. 752 Saratoga street, East Boston, was also arraigned with Keohane on a charge of going away after causing an injury to a person. Stasolo was in the car with Keohane when the accident occurred. His case was also continued.

ASA G. CANDLER PAYS WIFE $60,000

Atlanta, July 26.—Asa G. Candler, Sr., multimillionaire Coca Cola King, has purchased his freedom from his pretty wife whom he married a little more than a year ago.

According to reports, Candler paid his pretty young wife $60,000 of his copious bankroll and she has agreed not to fight his divorce suit, which he filed against her on the first anniversary of their wedding, June 20, last.

In the divorce action Candler charged his wife with cruel treatment and said she had gone "toy riding with other men," causing him much humiliation.

The suit was filed after months of wrangling, which came to a head when Mrs. Candler was arrested in company with two prominent Atlanta men in an apartment where the authorities said they found them with a partly consumed bottle of whiskey.

They were all exonerated and the chief of police, who headed the raiding party, lost his job.

Mrs. Candler was formerly a public stenographer here. She has not lived with her husband since the raid.

Starving Thief Gives Up After His Money's Gone

The police say he was exhausted and almost starved. Schott told them he had spent the money in Montreal, Boston and Albany.

HOPE TO BREAK DEADLOCK ON LOAN MONDAY

Discussions of the Dawes plan were resumed when the diplomats returned to London. There was much more optimism than at any time since the representatives of the international bankers declared to accept the terms of the committee on sanctions and default as favorable to the proposed $180,000,000 loan to Germany.

Predictions were made that an agreement would be ready for submission to the plenary session of the conference Monday. Six plans have been advanced to break the deadlock between the Britain and the French representatives.

REFUSE TO ALLOW CUT IN RAIL RATES ON WOOL

Washington, July 26.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today denied authority to transcontinental carriers to establish or continue lower rates on wool and mohair from Pacific coast terminals and adjacent points than from intermediate points to eastern defined territory. PAJAMA CLAD, GETS MAN IN LONG CHASE

Clad in his pajamas, Lawrence Hoar, proprietor of a gasoline filling station at Neponset and Cross streets, Norwood, chased two thieves he caught in the act of rifling his station, fired a fusillade of shots at them and then joined Norwood policemen in a long chase which ended in capture of one of the alleged thieves.

Later police of the Roxbury Crossing station captured a second fugitive. The men gave their names as Charles J. Doulet of New Heath street, Jamaica Plain, and William P. Sullivan of North Margella street, Roxbury. They were arraigned in district court today.

Hoar, asleep in his home, which adjoins the station, heard the tinkle of falling glass. He peered out and saw two men at one of the station windows. A motor car, the engine running, was nearby.

Hoar left the house after loading his revolver and crept up on the men. They saw him and fled in the car. Hoar gave chase and fired several shots. Norwood police joined in the chase and when the car of the alleged thieves was overtaken, Sullivan leaped out and escaped. Doulet was captured at point of a gun.

ELOPEMENT OF BROOKLINE GIRL REVEALED

When Miss Dorothy Sawyer, 18, a prominent Brookline high school honor student, kissed her parents goodbye at North Station, a month ago, and started for an extensive Maine camp, the parents didn't suspect the girl was travelling right out of their lives and into the arms of Clement Esty, chauffeur of an old Newton family.

Miss Sawyer worked hard to win the coveted art honors at high school, and when she graduated, the vacation in the Maine camp was one of the measures of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Sawyer of No. 137 Sumner road, Brookline.

The parents did not suspect that their daughter had a sweetheart, and never dreamed that she contemplated matrimony.

At Nashua, N. H., the girl left the train and met young Mr. Esty, who came to at No. 527 Dedham street, Newton Centre. They were married in Nashua by the Rev. Law...ence L. Barber.

The young bride neglected to inform her parents of her changed status, however, and Papa and Mama Sawyer knew nothing of the wedding until the marriage notice was returned to city hall at Newton. It shows the couple were married on June 27.

The elopement was the culmination of a romance that started several years ago in the Newton High school, where both were students. Later the bride attended the Brookline high school, but the romance continued until its culmination in Nashua.

SAYS HUSBAND IS MENTALLY CRUEL

Winifred James, Writer of Best Sellers, Asks Separate Support

New York, July 26.—Is it a question of aesthetics?

The handsome Henry De Jan rather ties his hand just in using the word when Americans are so addicted to that word "temperament" in these domestic complications.

Or is it, as the very continental looking De Jan insists, that Mrs. De Jan, long known to the world of letters as Winifred James, really does find American terrene standards?

At any rate it became evident through an action brought before Supreme Court Justice Goldfogle that the De Jans are hopelessly at odds on these subjects and that Mrs. De Jan seeks a legal separation. She seeks also alimony of $10,000 a year pending the trial of her case and $3,000 counsel fees.

DESTITUTE AND NEEDY.

This the author of "Letters to My Son," and numerous other "best sellers" of the war days, asks in the form of a motion to show cause, returnable next Tuesday, and states in her motion papers:

"That being destitute, and in need of immediate funds, I feel justified in the case in this manner. Mrs. De Jan further explains that her husband's mental cruelty and the anxiety and expense he put her to in hurrying home from England to fight his "surprise" suit for divorce, brought last January in New Jersey, have broken her health and made it impossible for her to pick up at this time her literary career.

While Mrs. De Jan charges cruelty and non-support, claiming that her allowance of $200 a month was stopped last January, her interesting husband, attached to the American Embassy at Madrid during the war period, once an official of the United Fruit Company and now an importer, makes this colorful commentary:

PLAYS HARMONICA.

That he does very nicely with an harmonica, but never seemed able to manage a guitar beneath a balcony with the moonlight in his face.

That his wife of twelve years is aesthetic, worships the beauties of spirit and the data of aristocratic England, on which she has a place, while looking upon American life as vulgar, mercenary and in the poverty of soul.

When the question was put directly to Mrs. De Jan, who is now living at the National Arts Club in Gramercy Park, she first seemed to catch her breath while a look of amazement swept her face. Then she smiled the least bit and answered with quite dignity:

"I don't see how he could have said that about me when he knows how happy I was to get all our London affairs settled and come home back here where we lived. I can enter into a controversy of print, but when the case comes to trial I think the court record will answer for me."

FINDS HIM CHANGED

The life of these two people, now middle-aged and childless, lived in many lands and with many graceful endowments, was interrupted in 1922, when Mrs. De Jan, having gone to England, as she says, to dispose of a burdensome property, returned to find him changed and his attitude one of absolute indifference. She told yesterday:

"It was a stunning thing to have happen to me when I had arrived so happy at the thought of being home again and of having been able to relieve him of this burden of his pocketbook, the house in London.

Their life together henceforward, always so charming and felicitous when on exhibit, became intolerable alone and only found solace by Arcadian closed doors. So the wife explains in her court papers. It was because of this that she was to return to England for awhile—the first known pass allows absence in chance with the heart of the distant one.

SUMMONS BY MAIL

Mr. De Jan knr wail about was even suggested it, she says. That was in 1923. Then came the service by registered mail of summons and complaint in his divorce case, brought in New Jersey, where he claims a residence in Passaic and charging abandonment. Simultaneously, discontinuance of the monthly $200.

HYLAN LIKELY 'FLIES LIGHT' ON TO ENTER RACE FOR GOVERNOR

Los Angeles, July 26 (United States Mayor John F. Hylan of New York stated here it was not unlikely that he would be a candidate for Governor of New York if the Progressive element of the Empire State demands his entry into the race.

Mayor Hylan, who, with Mrs. Hylan, was in Los Angeles as the guest of William Randolph Hearst, declared he was paying but little attention to politics while on a pleasure trip.

"While my name has been mentioned as a candidate for Governor of New York," said Mayor Hylan, "I have had no desire to be a candidate for either the mayoralty, the Governorship or the Senate. But inasmuch as we have a very progressive man as president of the New York board of aldermen, Mayor Hylan now would succeed me as Mayor, I might give consideration to the Governorship if the people demanded it."

BIG VOTE FOR LA FOLLETTE.

He said he expected Senator La Follette, independent presidential candidate, to poll a large vote in New York.

The Republican administration now in power in national affairs is under control of Wall street financiers, he said, and added:

"John W. Davis, Democratic nominee, must show the people that he merits to serve as willingly and faithfully as he served J. P. Morgan and other of his capitalist clients as an attorney."

Hylan further stated that in New York and in the country in general, the people are tired of financial interests holding the reins of government at Washington.

GUESTS OF CITY.

Mayor Hylan, Mrs. Hylan and Mr. Hearst were officially received by the city of Los Angeles and are guests of the city, as declared by Acting Mayor Steve Workman.

Later they visited the Goldwyn studios, motion picture studios, following which Mayor and Mrs. Hylan went to Long Beach to visit Hudson J. Jones, an uncle of the Mayor. They had not seen each other for years, and the reunion was most happy.

Both the New York mayor and Mrs. Hylan described their trip through California and the stay at Mr. Hearst's San Simeon ranch as wonderful.

They left for New York today.

DONATES GREAT HALL TO BOOST 'N. E. WEEK'

Mechanic Association Also Gives $10,000 to Install Great Radio System

Here's civic spirit for you.

And its purpose is to boost "New England Week," which will be observed with a punch September 15-20.

The Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association is so enthusiastic in its support of "New England Week" that it has given free use of its great building on Huntington avenue for a mass meeting.

Not content with that, the association, through its board of governors, has voted $10,000 to install public address and broadcasting apparatus.

And the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association, which has ever held Progressive views, and is a progressive institutions, is only one among scores of organizations aiding in arrangements for "New England Week," which is to be a big-time boosting event in the industrial, commercial life of the six sister States.

ANNOUNCED IN LETTER.

Announcement of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association's contribution was made in a letter from its president, Charles B. Burleigh, to the New England Week committee, of which John S. Lawrence of Boston is president.

The committee is delighted to have placed at its disposal one of the most commodious auditoriums in the East.

The radio committee for New England Week, of which A. L. McClelland of Boston is chairman, is arranging for a mass meeting at which it is expected Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, will be the principal speaker.

It is also planned to have the Governors of all New England States address the meeting either in person or by means of land wires from their capitols to the platform in Mechanics Building.

ARRANGES BROADCAST.

Another evidence of the zeal which marks all preparations for New England Week was the prompt contract made by Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association for the equipment which will carry the voices of the speakers all over New England and for a radius of 1,000 miles. The contract was made directly after the vote of the board of governors.

Broadcasting stations of Boston, Providence, Worcester, Fall River, Hanover and other points will participate in the mass meeting program, and in other events on the New England Week program. This will enable not only New Englanders, but thousands of radio fans to enjoy the entire program.

The action of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic Association in backing the movement so substantially has given impetus to general plans.

RENEE ADOREE GOES UNDER SURGEON'S KNIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., July 26.—While Judge Charles Monroe was preparing to hear her damage suit for $50,000 against the Los Angeles street railway company, Renee Adoree, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer actress was rushed to a hospital to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

TRIP AROUND THE WORLD

Amsterdam, July 26 (I. N. S.).—Another round the world flight got under way here today when Major Zanni, Argentine flyer, and two companions hopped off for an eastward trip about the globe.

Reports said the flyers were forced down at Rotterdam by low visibility but after a short wait they resumed the flight towards Paris and passed over Brussels.

They expected to proceed to Rome via Lyons. Major Zanni plans to follow the course the American fliers inspired out in their westward flight from California.

Major Zanni is "flying light." The only food supplies he took from here were bars of chocolate and a few pints of liquor.

Tennis in Full Swing Now on Myopia Hunt Club Courts

By BETTY ALDEN

THERE are fads even in sports.

Now it's golf, and again it's tennis, to which the pendulum swings.

This year, for instance, the racquet game seems to have enrolled more devotees than golf at the Myopia Hunt Club, Hamilton. Members of the fair sex seem quite as proficient on the courts as the men, and many a spirited match is being played at the club this season.

Of the Myopians who wield a swift and skillful racquet are Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stockton, the Albert Burrages, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman, Mrs. William Endicott, Tom Blumer, Herbert B. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Burrage, Louis A. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Sears, Amory and T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman, Jr.

There is certain to be an interesting gallery for the invitation tennis tournament which will be played at Myopia on Labor Day.

Mrs. James C. Cabot (Catherine Rush), formerly of Cambridge and now of Charleston, W. Va., is sojourning at White Sulphur Springs, Mr. Cabot joining her and the baby for the week-ends. Mr. Cabot is the son of the Godfrey Lowell Cabots.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burrage, Jr., who were listed above among the stars of the Myopian tennis firmament, have been established for some time now at their new home in Ipswich, on Heartbreak road.

Mrs. Albert B. Burrage, Jr.

Formerly the Burrages were of the Hamilton colony. The head of the house is one of the crack players of Myopia's polo team, taking part in the fast matches held on the Myopia and Piedmont fields earlier in the week. Mr. Burrage's brother, Russell Burrage, is another well-known polo player.

ALSO of the Ipswich colony this season are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice M. Osborne (Frances Cabot of Brookline, who are occupying the bungalow on the Galacar estate on Argilla road.

With them are Mrs. Osborne's mother and sister, Mrs. Charles Mills Cabot and Miss Sally Cabot. Until recently the Cabots occupied a house at Beverly Farms, which is now the home of the Shore School, Inc.

Miss Sally Cabot, who made her debut two seasons ago, came in to town for a bit of shopping the other day. When I saw her on her tour of the Boylston street shops she was wearing a cool looking frock of tan silk with a smart, close-fitting hat to match.

Miss Cabot is quite a "pal" of Miss Frances Smith, second daughter of the Joseph Lindon Smiths, who was presented at Buckingham Palace this Summer.

SPEED NEEDED IN FILING OF BONUS BLANKS

It is of the utmost importance that veterans fill out their bonus applications and send them in to Washington promptly, if they wish to receive the full benefits of the law.

Delay on the part of veterans in filing applications will result in loss to their dependents in the event a veteran dies before filing a legal application.

The American-Advertiser Bureau was established just for the purpose of helping veterans to make application promptly, and to assist them in filling them out correctly.

Here are some questions asked by veterans and the answers:

E. T. B., PROVIDENCE, R. I.

Q.—I was in the Army seven months and was honorably discharged. Please let me know how much my bonus will amount to? A.—If all your service in the Army during the World War was honorable service, you will be entitled to a service credit of $150. When this credit is turned into a 20-year paid up policy, it will have a face value of about $375.

MRS. C. F. K., PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Q.—My husband served as Chief Yeoman in the navy, part of whose service was on transport ships and part on shore duty in France. He filed last April, and I am in doubt as to the amount of the bonus I will be entitled to. A.—Your husband apparently served a sufficient length of time in both home and overseas service to entitle you, as his widow, to have no deduction in the maximum service credit of about $625. If your husband before his death had filed a bonus application his beneficiary or estate would be entitled to about 2½ times his service credit of $625. Under the law, however, his dependents will receive only the amount of the service credit of $625, which will be paid in cash in ten equal quarterly installments, beginning about March 1, 1925.

C. S. W., SKOWHEGAN, ME.

Q.—During the World War I was in the Army at the Great Lakes Training Camp from June 17, 1918, and was discharged January 22, 1919. Am I entitled to the bonus will it be paid to me in cash or in the form of an insurance. A.—If you did not serve on board a ship and did not leave this country you will receive a credit of $1.00 a day for each day of service in excess of 60 days. The bonus due you will be turned into a 20 year paid-up insurance certificate which will equal 2½ times your service credit.

M. V., WILLIMANTIC, CT.

Q.—Please tell me whether my brother is entitled to the bonus. He was drafted in April and was honorably discharged in August. After he reached camp he was taken sick and spent all the time in the hospital. A.—Your brother will be entitled to the bonus and he should file an application as soon as possible.

A. J. L., ISLAND POND, VT.

Q.—I went into the service July 15, 1918, served overseas, from Oct. 10ber 16, 1918, to September 7, 1919, when I was honorably discharged. Please tell me about what my bonus will be. A.—You will be entitled to a credit of $1 a day in excess of the first sixty days for home service plus $1.25 a day for overseas service.

This figure, when multiplied by 2½, will give you the approximate face value of your insurance certificate.

D. V., NORWOOD, R. I.

Q.—Is there any bonus coming to me? I enlisted July 2, 1917, and was in camp in the country until November 28, 1917. A.—If you were discharged from the service under honorable conditions, you will receive a credit of $1 a day for each day of home service, minus sixty days, which will make your service credit about $83. This figure, multiplied by 2½, will give you the face value of your insurance certificate payable at the end of twenty years.

K. D. A., PORTLAND, ME.

Q.—I enlisted July 25, 1918, and was honorably discharged January 22, 1919, serving all the time in Camp Devens. What is meant by the cash bonus? A.—From your length of service you will receive, after deducting the first 60 days of service, a credit of about $120. This amount when turned into a 20-year paid-up insurance certificate will have a face value of about $300. A cash bonus is paid to veterans or dependents whose length of service entitles him to a credit certificate of $50 or less.

FIRPO INQUIRES WHO COOLIDGE MAY BE

Washington, July 26.—"Who is that fellow?" asked Luis Firpo, the "Wild Bull of the Pampas," as he passed out of the Executive Office after shaking hands with the President of the United States.

The Argentine heavyweight prize fighter was presented to Mr. Coolidge by some South American newspaper men. He was at the White House only twenty minutes, and never realized he had seen the head of the Government until he had passed out, when he whispered an inquiry to one of his companions in Spanish.

RECEIVED IN OFFICE

Mr. Coolidge received Firpo in his office, at his desk. He shook his big, powerful right hand, and told him he had heard of him through the press, and that in appearance he came up to expectations. John Coolidge, son of the President, who had heard of the approach of the "Wild Bull," slipped into the Executive office and stood in a corner looking the giant over.

Firpo could not understand the English he heard, but felt something kind was being said to him and smiled recognition.

The coming and going of Firpo exercised the White House force from top to bottom. Everybody wanted to get a look at the prize fighter. Some of the police officers shook his hand and passed the time of day with him. His inability to speak or understand English deprived him of many compliments on his powerful frame and muscle.

SHOWS INTEREST.

Firpo was keenly interested in the public buildings and grounds. He visited the Argentine Embassy, where he was received by Tr. Honorio Puyrredon, the Ambassador. He was given the Ambassador's automobile for a tour of the city.

It was explained at the Argentine Embassy that Firpo did not come to Washington to take up the barring of the young woman who came on the ship with him. He wanted to pay his respects to the Ambassador. He dined with Dr. Puyrredon and returned to New York on the 3 o'clock train. His real problem, his manager said, is to get a proper training ground at a reasonable cost.

KANSAS TELLS PROHIBITION 'VICTORY'

"State Is 44 Years Removed From Thought of Return to Wet Days," Say Leaders

Topeka, Kan., July 26.—"The Victory Message to The World," is the title of a circular being broadcast by a number of Kansas organizations and signed by widely known Kansans. It purports to set forth the Kansas view "after forty-four years of prohibition."

The list of signers is headed by Henry J. Allen, former Governor of Kansas; Governor Jonathan M. Davis, Attorney General C. D. Griffith, William Allen White and Victor Murdock.

Kansas was the pioneer State in the United States to prohibit the liquor traffic by constitutional amendment. The statement adds:

"Today, more than four decades after the passage of the amendment, there is found throughout the State a well developed temperance conscience—a strong disgust for intemperance. Respect for the law, which in the early years of prohibition was brought about by compulsion, now is voluntary. Each generation is farther removed from an appetite for poisonous drink.

"Kansas views on prohibition, summing up these views, are expressions of her peace officers, are:

"Kansas in forty-four years removed from the thought of ever returning to the days of the saloon.

"No repeal or modification is needed, wanted or considered.

"Ease of enforcement grows with enforcement.

"Officials and private citizens are agreed that prohibition is the State's best business asset.

"Many crimes common in communities that tolerate liquor are absent from Kansas."

Portuguese societies in Attleboro, Boston and other towns of the State have been enlisted in the fight to have Uncle Sam allow Brum to return. He lost his job of his adoption, because the quota is exhausted.

Brum and his wife lived in Massachusetts fourteen years. Illness compelled him to seek a cure in the Azores. While here he took out his first naturalization papers. Now he finds he cannot return.

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

The Intensely True Story of a Boston Girl Who Seeks a Love That Is Real

IT BECAME now an effort to breathe—an effort to keep the form of Lee Willman's father from wavering before her. Yet Chickie heard in her mind an imperious command, like another voice, ordering her to speak; demanding, but she put down this violent weakness that went with such heavy pulsing through her nerves.

She said in a low, distant tone: "There were things told about me. He thought them false. When he found that they were true—I told him so; I had to tell him. Well, he left. He didn't say a word. He left."

"You quarreled? He left in anger?"

She shook her head. "We didn't quarrel. He left. That's all."

But Chickie saw the troubled, accusing look on the young, naive face, heard that sound as it came broken and living in its pain from Lee Willman's lips. She shut her eyes, pressing her fingers against her throat.

Norp Willman came to her side. He kept brushing his hat with his palm. "What do you think, Miss Bryce? Will you answer—was he desperate?" He left his own home in a frenzy?"

"I don't know—he was only here a moment.

The father stood there trying to wring words from her, asking questions, until finally she sent and leaned against the bed, covering her face with her hands. "I've told you all—everything."

"My son, Miss Bryce, my only son. If you dear, will you let me know? Will you phone at once?"

She nodded. "But I won't know. Oh, if you would ask something that I can do. If I knew where to go—I would do anything—anything."

She saw Lee Willman flying, face down, no life in the long, slender form. Her thought revolted against the image, against the judgment that she had brought him there. Yet she turned sick with fear.

Offered Help

She followed Norp Willman to the door. She looked into the man's quiet, gloomy eyes: "Can I help? Do you want me with you?"

He put on his hat, pulling it down in a listless way, a thing lonely and pitiful like a great picture about him.

"No—I have searchers out — I thought you might advise me—thought he might have told his plan."

"He never said a word."

Again Chickie stood behind that closed door—and she was now so benumbed, so weakened with shame, life seemed passing from her. She had little thought of herself; of the shame put upon her.

She saw this father, who for the first time looked old and helpless; saw him pulling on his hat in that forlorn way; saw men searching the hills. She had a wish to go out herself, climb through the brush, kneel at Lee Willman's side, speak softly.

But she could never give him back what she had taken—any more than she could return to Jimmy the full, pure sweetness of his love.

Chickie sat up that night thinking of this—thinking quietly with the fear laboring all the while in her mind. She knew that she was guiltless of luring Lee Willman. From the first moment she had told him love for her was impossible.

But he had gone on, dreaming of her; thinking her all beauty. Life had fashioned for him in her sweet form, the ideal he craved. He wanted it—passionately — as a child demands.

He Cried Out

It was snatched from him in this pitiless revelation. And like a child he cried out because of his great hurt.

She said to herself, trembling: "What did I do?" and she began to walk softly in a swift, nervous agitation. "It's not my fault."

Denying it, she became more frightened — that stark figure stretching pale and motionless before her.

And there kept flying into her mind the thought of escape—pack up and go. When she saw herself doing this she felt a swift, nervous agitation.

At midnight she went into the hall, intending to call the police and inform if any word had come. But Mrs. Janis was in the little sitting room—reading. Chickie went back to her room.

Its dark emptiness impressed her. Oh—it was terrible being here so alone. If she could have walked down the hall, and listened to Jonathan snoring; or if she could have felt near her another kindly human presence.

She wished now that she had gone with Norp Willman, insisted on accompanying him—anything to avoid herself and the utter bewilderment let loose within her heart.

The morning paper had a small account of Lee Willman's disappearance. He had gone on a sketching trip the paper said. He was an amateur artist and had left his car. He must have lost his way. But the searching party were hopeful of finding him before another night.

Had Breakfast

Chickie read this at breakfast in a small cafeteria.

She kept walking, saying to herself: "Why should he die for me? I told him—why should he care that much?"

It was a soft windless day in late August. She reached the old quarter of the city.

Suddenly she turned away. She went into a store and called Norp Willman's office. He was not there. A man answered: "He is looking for his son. He will not be in."

She shivered.

It was well into the afternoon when she returned to the boarding house. A car stood at the door. It belonged to Edith Bolter.

Her heart thumped so loudly it made her faint. Chickie went up the steps. No one in the boarding house parlor. In her room, perhaps.

They were—Barbara and Edith. Edith sat at the window, her head turned. But Barbara was standing—her face had no color. She looked at the floor.

Barbara Calls

Chickie said: "Oh—you had to come back . . ."

Barbara's lips moved. She bit them together: "Helena—you ought at least tell me—where is Lee—I'm nearly crazy . . . Where is he?"

"I don't know—"

"But you must have some idea. You know what he was going to do?"

"I don't know—"

"He left—the same here last—how can you treat us so? You can see what happened. Oh—what have you to lose? After all you've done—you can at least tell that—"

Chickie felt her heart turn white with pain. She went up to Barbara: "I will tell you anything you wish to know—anything—"

"Then what did he say when he left? Oh—this is the most awful thing—what did he say?"

"He asked me if those things were true. I told him that they were."

Barbara drove her teeth into her lip: "—you told him that—"

"Yes—at first he wouldn't believe—then, he turned away—he looked at me and turned away. And that's all, Barbara—that's all that happened."

Barbara gave a soft, aching cry, flinging out her hand: "Why did you tell—oh, why did you ever come—"

Edith had risen. Edith stepped now between Chickie and Barbara. She said in her bright, cold voice: "That is enough. Miss Bryce—what time did my brother get here?"

"About noon."

"What time did he leave?"

"Perhaps ten minutes later."

"You admitted everything to him?"

"I told him the things were true."

Infamous Shame.

"You did!" She turned to Barbara. "That's enough! You know him—it was enough to come into our house. She told him that infamous shame to him—admits it! We might as well give up."

Barbara was crying. Edith said to Chickie; "If our brother is dead—you have killed him."

In nothing room in Chickie then. She flung her head back. "If your brother is dead—you are the one who killed him. He had no hope from me. Nothing would ever have happened—I would soon have driven him his life. You prevented that."

Edith stooped down, speaking into Chickie's eyes: "You hoped to get away with it, did you? You thought you could come there and stand up as bride's maid at my sister's wedding—you—you are not fit to wipe her shoes—"

Chickie's eyes grew wide and hard; her breath tight but she forced it. She said quietly: "No—I'm not. But I am more fit than you! I have never given any love to one man and been married to another?"

Willman Stood There Asking Questions

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Does the groom have to invite the bridesmaid and best man to dinner or theatre if the married couple are leaving right from the minister's house?

(2) Must they get a gift?

(3) Is it proper for the bride and bridesmaid to have a bouquet?

G. H.

THIS is entirely a question of choice and convenience.

(2) It is customary for the bride to give a gift to the bridesmaid. The groom also gives a gift to the best man.

(3) Yes, proper and customary. For the informal wedding that you describe usually the bouquets are corsage bouquets.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

What is the proper way to address two elderly unmarried ladies? Should it be "Misses" or "Mmes."

D. P.

"THE Misses Jones" is the proper way, "Mmes." indicates the plural for Madame, "Mesdames" meaning matrons. A better form than "The Misses" for two elderly unmarried women is "Miss Jones" for the older lady and "Miss Sarah Jones" for her sister.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Kindly advise me the proper thing to do in embroidering initials on my linens for my trousseau.

ANXIOUS.

USE the initials of your maiden name—but the initial of the last name if you use only one.

WHO SAID IT AND WHERE

"There is nothing in this world constant but inconstancy."

Human nature is invariably fickle, Swift writes in an "Essay on the Faculties of the Mind."

"Men fear death as children fear to go in the dark, and as the natural fear of children is increased with tales, so is the other."

Bacon has put his finger on a real evil in these words from his essay "On Death."

"Unity, agreement is always silent, or soft-voiced; it is only discord that loudly proclaims itself."

Everyone has noted this fact that Carlyle has emphasized in his essay on "Characteristics."

"It is not now as it hath been of yore;
Turn wheresoe'er I may,
By night or day
The things which I have seen
I now can see no more."

As we grow older we all have this experience which Wordsworth chronicles in his ode on "Immortality."

"Reading and much reading, is good. But the power of diversifying the matter infinitely in your own mind, and of applying it to every occasion that arises, is far better."

Meditating on, and assimilating what we have read is better than mere desultory reading, Burke says in his "Letters."

The INSPIRED GIRL

By W. A. McKeever

LONG after others had quit for the day and had gone for pleasure and relief from the tedium of work a young girl artist sat at her desk plying her brush as if the day were at its fresh beginning.

And that was why she lingered diligently at her task and with such indifference to the lure of social pleasure. The young artist replied: "I seem to visualize a ray of bright light across the paper and setting it a mental picture of what I desire to draw, and it is all too interesting for me to leave."

"But how do you bring yourself to this point of ecstatic delight in your work?" the visitor quiz[zed] asked. "Is it some person, or some mission of service, or some ideal? What is the reason behind forces which move you on?"

"Oh, besides the visualized beam across the page I sometimes hear echoes," she answered, without pausing from the nimble hand movements.

"Arise, come to thy light and mount up to the goal of thy dreams.

"Arise, shine, for thy light is come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

Those she quoted, saying that the phrasing of them often rang through her spiritual hearing.

Do the parents and friends of the young give enough attention to visions and voices? Are we leaning too heavily on sheer force of physical wealth and what we call will power in the guidance of our children? If riches and material are a natural result of energizing and interesting the young workers, how can we doubtingly engage these activities of supremest question to me as being of first importance.

If this girl artist is to be the happiest our teacher would reason does she impart? Health, beauty, wealth and happiness are supposed to be the natural attainments of girlhood. How, by her conduct, does this young artist interpret such things? It is not that—

Health is first spiritual, a release of divine energy which floods the being with vigor and strength.

Beauty is an emotional response rather than a matter of physical appearance. It is inner rather than outer.

Wealth is a form of inspired work rather than material possessions, and is within the reach of all earnest seekers.

Happiness is derived from those inner sources from things. A high and lofty ideal, a purpose of unselfish attainment, a vision of unfolding growth in one, a visualization of light across one's path, a bearing of voices pleasing an appeal to the imagination and the emotions—these are some of the ingredients of happiness, as suggested by the self-controlled girl artist.

Notwithstanding my many years of experience studying the problems of character unfoldment, I have this day learned a valuable lesson from a girl of 18 who recently out of high school. It is a suggestion as to how the great issues of life and destiny must come from within the sacred precincts of the soul of the individual. It is an argument in effect that there is no great life except the inspired life.

DO YOU KNOW THAT---

Between the years 1812 and 1922 our national wealth increased by 72.2 per cent.

Boys and girls nowadays are better in health, intelligence and physical strength than in any previous generation.

The fashion of ladies riding astride is said to be going out, and the side-saddle is slowly returning to favor.

* * *

Hard work tends to long life because men and women who stick close to their profession must be regular in their habits.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If you want silcloth to wear like iron milk, rice, sago, and potato with beeswax and turpentine. If it is treated in this way once or twice a week, and on other days rubbed with a dry cloth after sweeping, it will preserve it longer.

Spots of milk or tea on a brass tray will vanish before the application of lemon-juice.

Cotton-wool dipped in methylated spirit will clean a photograph without destroying the surface.

On Monday Our PARIS FASHION LETTER will be printed here. Watch for it.

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL to "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

"POOR girl, you're about as low as Jim said. "Keep on like that pretty thing[umbled and don't go out and see what can be done for you. And after[wards I much run your head with cold water if you think that would relieve you some and you could sleep."

Ann Lisle

"Oh, I'm so glad you came back!" I sobbed.

"Say what do you take me for, a complete fool?" murmured Jim, his lips against my hair.

And so the end of the day which had started out in such pain and agony, we all gentleness and peace and tenderness. Though tonight was sleepless, I found that I would think of Neal almost happily.

What happened today has proved to me how pathetically I long for Jim's devotion, and now among it makes me to face whatever life may bring.

I found a big contract waiting when I got to the office, and in the course of the morning I actually got my copy ready for it and by afternoon I put the deal through without a hitch. The material fee was large, and the commission would run up into the thousands.

When a sudden start I realized that, commercially, I was at least completely on my feet. A big hit more at the bank made the day itself bright and the future showed a tomorrow promising something that would seem the world to me.

Getting my lips firmly, I let my mind play over the possibilities afforded me by plenty of money. And while I was in the middle of my planning the door opened and in walked Mabel Storrs Ingraham.

"Hello, lady!" she greeted me gaily. "Did you forget that I was due?"

"When I went see you for a week, but I know you're overdue," I smiled.

"Well, I came near forgetting," acknowledged Mabel, drawing off her gloves and taking a chair opposite me. "The work down at my studio is no slouch of a job, but I think of my own troubles not to mention those of my friends. I'm getting things established now and the business looks fine. Jobs and entertainments, and even special midday invitations. Never and more I'm going to be married. I guess I'm quite good after all."

"You always were," I said gently. "But I'm glad you're being repaid in your own satisfaction."

"Not quite that," Mabel broke in. "I wasn't awaiting. I was just explaining why I didn't land here earlier with the money for Neale dead."

I looked up in astonishment. I had been working so hard for my own purpose that I'd actually forgotten entirely that my date.

"I'm going to be able to pay it myself," I said abruptly. "I've got the $50 because I was work-

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas. — "Words can not express how much good Lydia E.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. Every month I would have cramps and headaches and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said it was operation. For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine. — Mrs. J. B. HILLEMAN, Cld E. Marshal St., Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Managers and Unions Almost in Clinch
The musicians and stage hands are demanding more money from the Boston theatre managers. The managers, collectively, say it can't be done and will not be done. The unions say their demands must be met or—well, you'll have to wait and see. In the meantime things are running as usual.

Boycot on American Films Lifted
The Japanese boycot on American pictures has not worked out as smoothly as some Japanese patriots had hoped. The Jap movie fan likes his Yankee film and is demanding it in strong terms. As a result the boycot has been abandoned, but natives are urged to patronize their own home-made films.

COLOR FILM IS WEEK'S NOVELTY

"Wanderer of the Wasteland" Comes to Fenway in New Dress

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

PICTURES in natural colors have arrived. And you have the word of no less a personage than Cecil B. DeMille, master director of Paramount films, that they have come to stay. No flash of novelty, to be discarded after a few exhibitions, the new Technicolor process takes nature as it looks to the human eye and transfers it to the silver sheet with perfect fidelity. Local movie fans will have their first opportunity to see a complete feature film in color at the Fenway today with the first showing of "Wanderer of the Wasteland."

COLOR PROCESS IS SIMPLE MECHANICS

THIS new natural color process was given its first tryout in a few of the sequences of "The Ten Commandments." It was a success from the start. It proved flawless in its color scheme and aroused the interest of theatregoers everywhere. Other pictures in natural colors had been presented but always with some imperfections, such as rainbow effects on the outlines of moving figures and with unnatural flashes in the quick movements of hands and feet. The colors were reproduced but there were many noticeable defects in the details. All this has been overcome in the Technicolor process, which in effect is the passing of two films behind the lens instead of one. It is a simple mechanical process. In "Wanderer of the Wasteland" at the Fenway, you will see a stirring Zane Grey story of the Southwest in the natural colors of the mountains, the Grand Canyon and the great Mojave desert. This film in many ways, should prove the novelty of the season.

LINCOLN FILM ONE OF RARE INTEREST

AND now we are to have Abraham Lincoln on the screen. We have welcomed this great American character on the speaking stage with happy results, in which box office records were upset everywhere, and an ever whelming interest aroused among all classes of theatre. There is little doubt that the Abraham Lincoln of the photoplay will carry the same message to millions and draw the same widespread attention. In "Abraham Lincoln" you will see at the Tremont Temple next week, the producers have endeavored not to create an entertainment, following the steps in Lincoln's life faithfully but laying no great stress upon the sorrows and tragedies that all students of history know marked his career. There were bright sides to Lincoln's life—romance and droll comedy—and these have been drawn into the screen story in agreeable fashion.

Youth, Beauty and Talent Walk Hand in Hand

Young women who make their way to the front in the theatre usually wait a much longer time for recognition than did Helen Holton, who will be seen at the Majestic in another week as one of the lolly young companions of W. C. Fields in "Poppy." Miss Holton combines the rare qualities of youth, beauty and talent, all of which combined Helen Holton make her a very important person in the affairs of this hearty comedy play. Incidentally, "Poppy" is Phillip Goodman's first complete offering as a producer, having always shared honors and profits with others in his previous undertakings.

In Mr. Goodman's plans for the future there is included a musical comedy by Jerome Kern and Edgar Selwyn, and a comedy of American life by Dorothy Parker and Elmer Rice.

SELF CONTROL HIS BEST ASSET

Lincoln's Danger Signal Manifested by Accentuated Drawl

An unusual witness discovered by the Rockett-Lincoln researchers in preparation for "Abraham Lincoln" which comes to Tremont Temple on Monday evening, is Edward Judd of Seattle, son of Norman B. Judd, for sixteen years United States senator from Illinois; ambassador to Berlin in Lincoln's administration, and manager of the campaign which put Lincoln into the presidency.

In making comments on Lincoln Mr. Judd related that his father said the one thing, more than any other, that proclaimed the strength of character of the man was the fact that he never gave way to a fit of temper but always controlled himself. At times he would become so furiously angry that Mr. Judd would think, surely, he would show his anger, but he never lost self-control. Lincoln's eyes would fairly blaze but his voice was level. In fact the angrier he became the more of a drawl he took on—and when he used a very decided drawl it was time to look out. "But," explained Mr. Judd, "the eyes became coals of fire, fairly scintillating. The blazing eyes could not be mistaken but the man's whole demeanor was so cool and composed as to be astonishing."

Negro Actor Has Talents of His Own, Says Sissle

When you come to think of it the colored artis doesn't ask for so much. He seems satisfied with a certain "discrimination" in regard to his color—at least, that is the opinion of Noble Sissle, now appearing at the Tremont Theatre in "In Bamville." Perhaps the most American of all theatrical entertainment is minstrelsy. And minstrels usually are white actors with their make-up of brown or black.

"Good minstrels are very pleasing to me," says Mr. Sissle. "If the white minstrel be a good actor, then he gives a characterization of the negro which we recognize and admire. Yet I do not believe that negro actors should put on white make-up and appear in the characterization of white men. I never expect the time to come when it would be desirable.

WARNS GIRLS AGAINST "NUT COMEDIANS"

JANET LAWSON

Stage star who accuses actor-husband of brutalities in suit for divorce. She says she knew he was a "wild man," but didn't bargain on the treatment she received. She says he blackened her eyes, choked her and slapped her face.

DRIVE FOR CLEAN SODA FOUNTAINS

'Salad King's' Son 'Scarred My Soul,' Ora Says

STAR SUES 'WILD MATE' AFTER BEATINGS

New York, July 26.—"Heaven help a girl who marries a nut comedian."

Janet Lawson Rose, formerly of the Zeigfeld Follies, made this fervent observation following the filing of her suit for a separation from Jack Rose, straw hat-smashing comedian in vaudeville.

She asked Justice McGoldrick for $200 weekly alimony and $2,500 counsel fees, the latter to be paid her trial counsel, Rudolph Stand, and her attorneys, Novemier and Jaffe, No. 160 Broadway.

The filing of the suit brings to light charges of brutality ouvdoing the alleged pugilistic propensities of Frank Tinney.

Mrs. Rose charges her husband with a series of beatings, assaults and inhuman attacks.

She carries a permanent scar on her forehead, caused, she says, by a blow with his clenched fist a week after they had been married.

The blow landed on her right eyebrow, and broke a blood vessel. The sight was saved only by the efforts of a Chicago specialist.

WON HER ON KNEES.

Rose prefaced her remarks with the cynical observation:

"Jack wore out his knees wooing me, but, once won, he wore out his fists proving his ownership.

"I foolishly tried to make a man of him. I'll admit that I knew he had a reputation for wildness, but he promised that if I would marry him he would straighten up. That's a joke. I have a letter here."

From her handbag Mrs. Rose extracted a bundle of letters, opened one and read this paragraph:

"Honey, I know I am a little wild, but I will sweeten down gradually and when we are together I will start saving money and I now trust you enough to listen to whatever suggestions you make."

BARED LOVE IN LETTERS

There were other letters, all fervent appeals that she marry him. But disillusionment followed. Of this she said:

"We were at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Pryor in Memphis when Jack took offense at some remark I made. He slapped me and knocked me to the floor. Mr. Pryor threw him into the street.

"During the time I lived with him I did not know him to draw one single sober breath. Always the day after a bealing he would be contrite and beg my forgiveness. Each time I foolishly believed the beating would be the last.

"We were at the Brown Jug Hotel in Birkenhead, England, in 1923, when Jack came home after the theatre beastly drunk. He called me names and made terrible accusations against me. He started to choke me. If it had not been for the hotel proprietor I truly believe he would have killed me.

"That cured me of trying to cure him. I telegraphed my mother and returned to this country."

HUB MAN IN FIGHT FOR $500,000

In an effort to wrest a $500,000 fortune from the British government Major Thomas L. Walsh is sailing for England, today on the Leviathan.

Major Walsh seeks the fortune in behalf of Thomas Quinn of No. 4 Mason street, Charlestown, a confectioner. The fortune was left by Quinn's brothers, Peter and Ed ward, who died in Australia in 1913.

The brothers had some years earlier, been given a grant of land in Australia by the British crown Gold was discovered on the land and the brothers became wealthy. When the pair died in the same year the British authorities made an unsuccessful effort to locate the Charlestown man. The property was finally reverted to the crown.

Quinn, some years later, learned of the death of his brothers but the war prevented his going to Australia to assert his right.

Major Walsh is going to London prepared to fight the case through the British courts. He has learned that it will require about six weeks to press the matter through the courts.

The Quinns were all born in Ireland and Major Walsh will visit the birth-place to secure some records needed in his battle for the fortune.

They plan to make Springfield, Mo., by August 20.

DRIVE ON HUB SODA RESORTS

Dr. Mahoney Asks Public to Aid the Campaign for Clean Service

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, health commissioner, today urged the public to co-operate with him in an effort to rid Boston of unsanitary soda fountains and soft-drink establishments.

"Let every one in Boston become a health commissioner, even to the children," said Dr. Mahoney. "Let them see to it that drinks ordered in any soft-drink establishment be served under sanitary conditions.

"Especially is this true during the hot weather, when the patronage of such establishments is at its highest peak. The public should insist on clean glasses. They should do so as a matter of health.

"During the hot weather health inspectors attached to the food division of the health department have been instructed to devote special attention to soda fountains, soft drink and ice cream resorts.

"The health department will appreciate the reporting of any infraction of the rules governing these establishments. The patrons should send in the names of all offenders.

"The rules of the department are clear and there is no excuse for any establishment violating them."

OFFENDERS FACE COURT.

Dr. Patrick H. Mullowney, deputy health commissioner in charge of the food division, instructed all health inspectors today to re-start the every establishment and see if suggestions made by health authorities for cleaner glasses have been put into effect. If not the owners will be called into court.

Dr. Karl R. Bailey, deputy health commissioner in charge of the laboratory department, has a force of bacteriological experts at work examining samples of seized tonics and samples of would be taken from soda fountains.

A drive is also being made by health inspectors against violators of the soft drink law. In several instances it has been found that unscrupulous venders have been selling children adulterated tonic. Bottles of so-called orangeade, supposed to be made from pure fruit juices, has been found to be made from nothing more than orange rind.

EXAMINE BOTTLES.

If the bottle contains adulterated tonic, the word "imitation" must appear on the label. If it does not appear on this kind of a drink, it is a direct violation of the law. The public is advised to examine all bottles before buying.

Dr. Mullowney insists that soda fountain owners keep their surroundings clean, as well as their glasses and tanks. He intends to carry on the crusade until all violators of the law have been driven out of business.

Any readers of the American noticing unsanitary conditions at any soda fountain are requested to notify the City Editor of the Boston American.

SHOT AND KICKED FOR OBJECTING TO HOLDUP

Providence, July 26.—When Louis Petrarca refused to submit tamely to being held up in his store in Olneyville he was shot in the left leg, kicked and beaten with a pistol butt.

Two customers and a clerk also were beaten, and then tied with packing cord and thrown under the counter.

There were two gunmen in the raiding party, according to Petrarca. They left with $62 and a $35 watch.

Valerie Petrarca, the clerk, had $900 in his pocket when the gunmen entered, but saved it by tossing it into a pile of refuse while brother.

OLD ORCHARD BRANCH MAY BE RUN PRIVATELY

Private interests have been negotiating with the Boston & Maine to take over the Old Orchard Beach branch of the B. & M. Railroad, which has been abandoned by the railroad for financial reasons, and operate it with a gasoline motor car.

GIRLS SEIZE AUTO; FLEE INN PARTY

Police Compliment Bobbed-Hair Maids for Leaving Their Host to Walk Home

Two bobbed haired blondes from Allston, who scorned to walk home, though the party was rough, gave the police of Swampscott, Wenham and Lynn a lively three-quarters of an hour today.

When it was over they were complimented for their courage and resourcefulness and sent home in a machine of the Lynn police department.

The excitement started when a man who said he was Hyman Sharpio of No. 216 Chestnut street, Chelsea, telephoned from the village of Wenham that his automobile had been stolen by two bobbed haired girls.

Swampscott and Lynn police were signalled to the telephone boxes and warned to be on the lookout for them.

LEAVE HOST TO WALK.

In Wenham and Swampscott the girls managed to elude the authorities, but on the curve just over the Lynn line they were halted by Patrolmen Coppinger and Darsney.

At Lynn headquarters Captain James Broad informed them they were charged with the theft of an automobile and various other things. Whereupon they began to laugh.

"I am Eu'ly Clark of Allston," said the more blonde and bobbed of the two.

"We've known Hyman for some time and last night he invited us to go for a ride in his machine. At a restaurant in Wenham we stopped, and had drinks.

"Then the attitude of the man changed and improper began to join the party. My friend and I had a conference and decided it was time to leave.

PRAISED BY POLICE.

"But the men didn't want us to go. So we had to resort to strategy. I pretended I had left my vanity case in Hyman's machine. We went out.

"Well, Captain, you know how it is. It was a long way to walk, and I wear French heels, anyway.

"So we decided to reverse the usual order and let the men walk home. We had no intention of keeping the car. Hyman knows us and would know just where to get it.

"The laugh is on him, I think. He shouldn't invite girls out for the evening and then let a lot of strangers horn into the party.

"Why, even the proprietor of the roadhouse tried to flirt with us. I think the men got off light."

Being satisfied that the story they told was true, Captain Broad ordered out a department flivver and detailed two plainclothes men to see the girls safely back to Allston.

In the meantime, however, the man who said he was Mr. Sharpio peared and claimed his automobile

According to the despatches, the Persian youth grabbed the veil worn by Mrs. Imbrie, attempting to tear it from her, and at the same time expectorating upon her. A native policeman made no attempt to protect her.

They allegad that Klan members forced Japanese to withdraw from farms at the point of revolvers.

The Foreign Office has asked Consul-General Cyama at San Francisco for a report.

Sacramento, Cal., July 26.—Japanese in Sacramento today expressed surprise at the news dispatches which have been cabled from San Francisco to Japan stating that Japanese farmers near Sacramento and Santa Rosa have been forced from their farms by the Ku Klux Klan. They expressed the belief that the reports are untrue.

Police had not heard of such occurrences.

The Sacramento Daily News, Japanese newspaper, printed a story regarding an alleged Klan demonstration against Sonoma Japanese. According to a translation it is stated that "at about 10 p. m., July 22, a Japanese named Wada came to the camp of the Japanese workers at Upton and told them American people, riding in three automobiles, came to my camp and notified me that they will come back at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to drive the Japanese out of this place if we don't get out."

Wada said that the Americans fired rifles and pistols into the air and later he found twenty-eight empty shells.

KLAN AN ISSUE IN THE TEXAS PRIMARIES

Dallas, Tex., July 26.—The Ku Klux Klan, strength of the Farm-Labor element, and how many votes the first woman to make the race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination will receive, are the principal issues and interests in the Democratic primary in Texas today.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson of Temple, wife of former Governor Ferguson, has her name on the ballots with eight other candidates. She entered the race when her husband was unsuccessful. All of the candidates for the gubernatorial nomination except Judge Felix Robertson, have denounced the Klan. Judge Robertson says he has the support of that organization.

The Dreamer was patrolling the harbor when members of the crew noticed a boat off the gut without lights. The Dreamer started toward the mysterious craft, which fled. A shot was fired and the boat came to quick stop. The custom officials boarded the launch and found the alcohol.

Those on board from the boat gave their names as Captain Frank Ferrino, Michele Cullia and Joseph Parker.

The men, launch and alcohol were taken to the army base, South Boston.

POLITICS---1924 RACE

GASTON WILL BE SUNDAY GUEST OF DAVIS

Dark Harbor, Islesboro, Me., July 26 (I. N. S.).—A six weeks swing around the circuit beginning September 1 is planned by John W. Davis, Democratic Presidential candidate, in a stumping offensive that will take him to most of the country. Radio facilities will receive particular attention.

A cruise with William A. Gaston of Boston, who ran a close race against Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts in 1922, is to be a Sunday guest of Mr. Davis at the Charles Dana Gibson estate where the nominee is staying.

Plans are being formed for Davis to return to New York late next week, leaving here Thursday. He will put the finishing polish on his acceptance speech at his home in Locust Valley, Long Island.

Mr. Davis was asked whether his acceptance address would parallel the Democratic platform.

"It will not dissent from the platform," he replied.

"How will your treatment of the League of Nations in the speech compare with the platform plank?"

"We shall have to wait until the speech is finished, then set the two side by side," he replied.

Davis told newspaper correspondents that if he were elected President, he would urge a constitutional amendment to have treaties ratified by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress, instead of two-thirds vote of the Senate, as now required.

RICH GIFT STORIES DENIED

Husband Accused of Drawing Long Bow by Mack-Sennett Beauty

John C. Howard, heir to Haverhill salad dressing millions, handels the truth in an extremely careless manner, according to his beautiful wife, Ora Carewe, of Mack-Sennett bathing beauty fame.

Howard recently beat up Alexander Pantgar, Los Angeles vaudeville magnate, who he found automobiling with his wife in the small hours of the morning, even though his wife had already instituted proceedings for a divorce.

"My husband's false statements have left deep scars on my soul. My heart has been broken by lies" declares Miss Carew. "It is time the public knew the real truth about my unhappiness.

DENIES COSTLY GIFTS.

"Ever since I married him I have tried to protect my husband from his own rash acts," she says. "But what thanks have I ever received? Only accusations that I loved another man.

"He claims that he gave me a Hudson phaton wrap and on one occasion bought me four gowns that cost $1,800. One per cent of the amount he names is what the wrap really cost. He did make me some nice gifts, but he never supported me.

"My husband's statement that he spent $75,000 on me in one day is false.

And Ora Carew points to two suicide notes she alleges were written by her husband as proof that she is in the right. "They will be offered as evidence in her divorce suit. Howard denies writing the notes and insists that his wife must have written them herself.

Ora Carew says she found the two missives on her dresser when she returned home late one night and found her husband in bed unconscious.

LOVE EXPRESSED.

One envelope was addressed "To Ora, My Little Girl" and read as follows:

"Dear Ora: I went through this once, but cannot again. I have lost everything—your affection and the respect of my family and mine. Everything that there is, although little, is yours.

"Please forgive me, forget me, but remember, in my way I loved you. There is no mistake this time. I am going through with what was foiled last night. What could be better?

"I cannot live without you. You have other interests, that of your people, which is right.

"I have shamed you and forfeited your love, so, Ora, darling, I may wake up in another world with brother Woodbury and may find happiness and peace. Goodby to all.

"JOHN."

BEGS FAMILY TO FORGIVE.

The second letter which she alleges is addressed to his father, reads:

"Dear Ma and Pa and Albert:

"Whatever I might do, know that I think it is right. I cannot stand to see Ora, but have abused her. I owe a note at the Bank of America, Broadway, L. A., for $1,000 to which I signed Ora's name in place of my own. I wish you would pay this as I don't want it to reflect on Ora and you.

"What trouble I am in and the money I spent is my own fault. I love Ora, but have abused her. I love you all and have abused you and I cannot stand to go on having lost you all.

"Forgive and try to forget me.

"JOHNNIE."

SPORTS

YALE HAD NEARLY PERFECT SEASON IN COLLEGE SPORTS

HARVARD BOYS HAD OFF YEAR

By R. T. BULKELEY.

New Haven, Ct., July 26.—Now that the returns are all in Yale men feel that the college year of 1923-24 was perfectly satisfactory for out of sixty-three varsity and freshmen athletic contests with Harvard and Princeton their teams walked away with the bacon forty-six times. Harvard's varsity team took the count in all the major sport contests with Yale, while Princeton went under in everything but baseball.

These few facts make the year sufficient unto itself so far as Yale alumni are concerned, but to make things a little brighter yet, Yale walked away with the intercollegiate track title, rowed all her rivals to pieces on lake and river, produced a football team that commanded the respect of the collegiate world and cleaned up also at hockey and trapshooting.

And only Princeton headed Yale out of the pony polo championship and out of the intercollegiate swimming title. Incidentally the indoor pony polo title went to Yale. Inter-collegiate golf found its champion at Yale.

GREAT YEAR FOR ELIS.

Summing up the athletic situation at Yale statistics prove Yale had 14 victories and one tie with the athletic series with Harvard.

Harvard won the inter-university golf match only by a narrow margin. Princeton had better luck against Yale than Harvard did, the Tigers getting 6 victories while Yale had 4.

Two events were tied. Princeton won the baseball championship after the total number of games was tied and also won the lacrosse.

Yale freshmen beat Harvard in eight sports and lost to Harvard in five, while Yale took 12 victories from Princeton and lost four to the Tigers. Harvard freshmen beat Yale in baseball, rifle shooting, golf and cross-country running, while Princeton's yearlings beat Yale in track games, wrestling, basketball and hockey.

The so-called "Big Three" base ball title was cinched by Yale's old time when Harvard took her series from Princeton. Princeton cleaned up on Yale, and Yale went out and took the bacon away from Harvard. In that major sport only was any decision rendered.

CREW HOLDS LIMELIGHT

In all other sports Yale was far and away first. The rowing situation at Yale should be easy for another five years. Ed Leader, "miracle man" from the Pacific Coast, is here for that length of time, according to a contract signed just before he took the Yale Varsity crew to Henley-on-Seine for the Olympic games. In baseball, "Smoky Joe" Wood has his chance again with a contract that does not expire until another baseball season is gone. Wood has a remarkable freshman team—one that lost but a single game all season long—to work with in turning out the next varsity nine.

Basketball, with Coach Forsey directing, will come in for a lot of attention this Fall, and presumably an effort will be made to lift Yale from the profound depths.

To less than a year Yale runs from last to first in the intercollegiate fields, only to sink back to last place by the time the season of 1923-24 had ended.

Football will this year as before remain an unknown quantity at Yale until each scheduled game comes along.

Bare statements are all the football authorities permit to go out concerning the momentous events of the practice sessions and with that the public must be satisfied until the team takes the field on each successive Saturday through the season.

But a formal list of candidates will be issued when the date for the first practice is announced. With college opening on September 21, it is likely that football men will be hailed back for work about September 1, though the date is not definite.

WINGED FOOT STARS TO HONOR BRADY

Michael Brady, the Winged Foot pro and the new Metropolitan open golf champion, will be asked to relate a few victuals as the guest of the club tonight.

All who possess the mercurial heel are invited to speed their way over fairway and bunker to attend said dinner, as that full honor may be done to Sir Mike.

E. De Lamo is in charge of the entertainment and may be reached at Vanderbilt 8700 if anyone cares to question him concerning the purchase of a seat among the mighty. The Winged Foot Club, with two of the finest courses in the metropolitan district and the Met open champion as their pro, is now sitting pretty in the local golf world.

Moe and Joe They Get the Dough---Sometimes

Moe took a flop yesterday. He took a stab at Priscilla Ruley, but the filly's dogs were a trifle heavy and she was late getting away from the post. However, Moe's record of nine winners out of the last eleven selections is something to chirp about.

He is taking one today that even Joe Byrne says is the proper hop, and Byrne seldom agrees with anybody's info.

THIS GOAT IS A SURE WINNER BUT HE NEEDS SOME EXERCISE AND MY BOY, JUST QUIT! DO YOU KNOW OF ANYONE?
SURE! I'LL GET MY MAN, JOE! TO DO HIS STUFF!
I've got a grand on Sunsini in the fourth gallop. I want you to take him out for some exercise. Can you ride an oat barrel?
WELL SIR, I USED TO WORK ON A MERRY GO-ROUND!
WHERE'S THAT BLOKE OF YOURS WITH MY FILLY? HE'S BEEN GONE AN HOUR NOW, AND THE SCAMPER STARTS IN TEN MINUTES!
GOSH! I'LL GO LOOK FOR HIM!
I ONLY RODE THIRTY MILES ON HIM SIR! AN' THE FILLY QUITS ME COLD!

POLOIST HURT IN PLAY AT MYOPIA

Hamilton, July 26.—After giving Montreal a three goal handicap, Cooperstown four won a well played game of polo on Myopia Field, 12 to 5.

Just before the opening of the game, at 3:30 o'clock, it looked as if the playing would be prevented by rain, as heavy dark clouds hung over the field giving every indication of a brisk shower. Before the ball was rounded to start, however, there was bright sunshine and a cool breeze swept across the field.

Frank Dane had the field in the best of condition, as usual.

Just after the third period got under way, Quincy A. Shaw, playing at No. 2 for Cooperstown, was thrown when his pony slipped. He fell in such a way that he struck on his head, rendering him unconscious. It was almost fifteen minutes before he recovered, after which he was unable to continue play. He was assisted to his automobile and taken to his home, where it was reported this evening that he is not seriously injured. The pony became frightened and started on the run towards the Myopia clubhouse.

MISS BANCROFT WINS ESSEX NET TITLE

Miss Leslie Bancroft won the Essex Country Club singles tournament yesterday afternoon, defeating Miss Allen Thorndike, 6—2, 6—3, in their final round match at Manchester. Miss Thorndike qualified for the final through the default of Mrs. Ann Shoate Cole, former national indoor singles champion, because of a sore right arm.

Mrs. Cole played in the doubles final in the morning, partnering Mrs. F. H. Godfrey to a win over Miss Margaret Blake and Miss Ann Fuller, 6—3, 6—3, but her armed soreness was such that she decided to default in the singles. She defaulted her mixed doubles semi-final the previous day.

The mixed doubles tournament was won by Miss Elizabeth Bright and Josiah Wheelwright, who defeated Miss Eleanor Sears and Nathaniel W. Niles, 6—4, 2—7, 8—6, in the final. Miss Bright and Wheelwright put Miss Bancroft and J. E. Russell, 6—2, 6—3, in the semi-final round.

BIG SHAKEUP IS PLANNED FOR BRAVES

By NICK FLATLEY

There's a lot of fight left yet in the Braves, according to acting manager Richard Rudolph. You wouldn't think it from peering at the standing of the clubs, but temporary manager Dick says so as if he meant it.

Being manager of a shot ball club isn't the pleasantest thing in the world. Richard's position reminds us of a barber without any razor or scissors.

RUDOLPH IS HOPEFUL.

The former great pitcher doesn't seem entirely discouraged. In the first place, he's getting managerial experience which will be very good for him one of these days, and in the second, he can't help it if the batters don't hit the ball, or the pitchers fail to throw it properly. He's like a jockey in a big stakes mounted on a heroin hauler.

"We've had a lot of ball games," Richard explains, "but we haven't had much the best of it at any time. You can't have three or four of the men on a ball club taken to the hospital and expect the team to get anywhere. But the players left have been trying all the time."

CHANGE IN TRIBE DUE.

President Mathewson and Judge Fuchs have not arrived in Boston yet, so it will not be surprising if the pair announce some kind of a deal from New York. They are going to juggle the club around quite a bit, and are talking things over with Manager Banny, who is recovering as rapidly as possible from his appendicitis operation.

Frank Wilson of Boston College is being played in centre, and chances are he will be kept there, as he rights like a wolf against the club. He has plenty of promise, and deserves plenty of opportunity. He can cover acres of ground, and sets like a hit ter at the platter. He made two of the Braves' seven blows against the Pirates, and turned in the feature of the fielding day, going back right against the scoreboard for one torrid smash.

PIRATES FULL OF FIGHT.

The thing that stands out mostly about the Pirates now is their dash and ambition. The club has hurdled up into third place, climbing rapidly from the depths. It should be in second position before more than a couple of weeks. Bill McKechnie has pitching, and speed, and enough hitting to make life interesting for anybody right now. He could scrap it out with the Giants nicely, if the champions hadn't built up such a wide lead by nocking their eastern rivals before the last jaunt into the West.

Pittsburgh is having a big baseball Summer, according to the travelling experts. The Giant series there drew more than 50,000 paid spectators in four days, which sounds like a season's total at the Wigwam. A Saturday pastime saw 22,000 packed into Forbes Field.

MALONE AGREES TO BOX GREB FOR CHARITY

By JACK CONWAY

JACK MALONE, brilliant St. Paul middleweight with box Harry Greb, middleweight champion, for NOTHING, provided the profits of the show are donated to the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund. Malone and his manager, Tommy Walsh, agreed after a conference with this writer to condition for a tussle with Greb to be staged in this city. The bout, if it can be arranged, will be held in the interest of the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund.

Malone will be paid only training expenses. This will enable his club which promotes the show for the poor of Greater Boston to meet Greb's terms.

As champion, Greb has demanded $25,000 for defending his title. This is the amount of money he was paid when he battled Johnny Wilson in New York.

Greb recently cut his figure in $20,000 when he clashed with Ted Moore in a contest in New York in aid of the Milly Fund, of which Mrs. William Randolph Hearst is chairman. For a time it appeared as though Greb would not be able to box for Mrs. Hearst's committee on account of his suspension in New ork, which resulted from his being set down in Massachusetts. This writer, acting for the New York committee, took the matter up with the Massachusetts and New York Commissions, with he result Greb's suspension was lifted.

At the time Roddy Mason, Greb's manager, agreed to box for the Boston American's Christmas Basket Fund if the champion's services were desired.

GREB'S suspension will expire in Massachusetts on [illegible]. A Malone-Wilson bout could then be staged in plenty of time to fill the Christmas baskets for the poor of Greater Boston.

Malone volunteered his services FREE for the Boston American's Christmas Basket show last December. Jock had just knocked out George Ward at the Arena and would have been a good card. This writer however, had previously arranged for a bout between Johnny Wilson and Harry Greb, and by the time Wilson was even a greater box office attraction than Malone. Like Greb, Wilson was on hand with his usual figure to help the poor. Incidentally, the Wilson-McCarthy bout was staged in the Arena instead of in the ice a boxing show indoors in Boston.

THIS writer will ask Greb for his terms for a bout with Jock Malone provided the latter wins over Frank Wilson, former middleweight champion, in their no-round bout at the Suffolk A. A. show at Braves Field on next Monday night. Malone will have to fight better than he did against Augie Ratner or Frank Moody to accomplish this result.

Wilson is a terrific body puncher, which will bother Malone. He is also a good ring general. Other than that Greb has the decision and if he and some gentlemen who detest everybody but bootleggers and dope fiends can raise the purse Jock and if he were in having as enemies persons with whom decent people do not care to associate.

As one old sage once remarked:

"Show me your associates and I shall tell you what kind of a man you are."

JOHNNY McGRATH was a caller at this office. He informed us that the mighty Hambone Kelly has been training on the sidewalks and is to battle either Paul Berlenbach or Young Stribling at Braves Field. Kelly has the punch and if he will take training seriously he will be able to make things very interesting for either Berlenbach or Stribling.

FAIRCHILD TO PLAY McLEOD IN GOLF FINAL

Manchester, Vt., July 26.—Dan Fairchild of Providence and Swyre McLeod, Jr., a Princeton student of New York and Old Bennington, will meet in the 36-hole final match for the Ishan Cup at Ekwanok Country Club tomorrow, as a result of the third and semi-final rounds today.

Fairchild disposed of J. J. Mapes, Harvard, in the morning play, although Mapes threw away the chance to force an extra hole match. In the afternoon Fairchild had a fairly easy route against F. C. Robertson of Nice G. C.

MOVIES SHOW TUNNEY'S K. O. OF CARPENTIER WAS O. K.

NO FOUL BLOW HIT IN BOUT

New York, July 26.—Motion pictures of the Carpentier-Tunney bout reveal that the blow which felled the Frenchman in the 14th round was not foul, despite assertions of many ringside spectators that it was below the belt.

Carpentier and Tunney, together with their managers, Francois Descamps and Billy Gibson, and Jack Curley, Carpentier's friend and adviser, attended a public showing of the films at a Broadway theatre this afternoon, after which Descamps gave out the following statement:

"A mistaken impression prevails over the blow which knocked Carpentier to the resined floor of the ring in writhing pain. It was not Tunney's gloved fist that committed the alleged foul blow. It was Tunney's knee.

"We are making this assertion merely to give our side of the battle with no intention of registering any complaint against any of the officials or the public. We are being satisfied that the referee was fair and honest, meant us no harm, and we are satisfied to abide by his decision. In connection we make for a return match with Tunney and feel confident it allowed another chance we can reverse the decision."

Despite pre-fight promises that he lost to Tunney he would hang up his gloves for good and all, there is every indication that Carpentier will continue to engage in ring activities. He is scheduled to meet Homer Rigney in Buffalo on August 4, but neither Francois Descamps, his manager, nor Carpentier himself sought to give any definite reply today to his future plans, preferring to wait until he has entirely recuperated from the beating he took at Tunney's hands, before making a definite announcement.

Carpentier, today, is a sorry looking spectacle, his head swathed in bandages, his face swollen and his eyes rimmed with blue and black bruises, he sat in a chair in a Park avenue apartment, where he spent last night recovering from his gruelling contest, and talked about the fight. Descamps, voluble and gesticulating with two of the boxer's ringside aides.

MOSSER WINS GOLF CROWN IN MAINE

Poland Spring, Me., July 26.—Karl Mosser of Blue Rock, former Massachusetts amateur golf champion and the "open" amateur champion also of Maine in the Bay State's secession by beating Hiram W. Ricker, Jr., of the home club, 3 and 4 in their final-round match here. Mosser finished the first 18 holes with only a margain of 1 hole to his favor. Winthrop P. Hersey of Wellesley won the title last year.

Paul V. Sawyer of Boston was the winner of the second flight, beating Sidney Noyes, a 14-year-old stripling from the Ardsley Country Club, 4 and 3. Sawyer also is a youthful golfer and was compelled to play consistently all the way around, because his rival seldom was above par figures.

Mosser played brilliantly at times this afternoon against Ricker. On both morning and afternoon rounds he scored deuces on the short 13th hole, but in the afternoon it was good only for a half.

SQUALL HOLDS UP PLEON YACHT RACES

Marblehead, July 26.—Owing to the threatening sky, with what appeared to be squalls making up in the West, the starters in the club event of the Pleon Yacht Club were kept down to six "O" boats, one Bay Bird, a Fish carboat and three Brutes. [illegible] of this unsettled weather the racing was confined to [illegible] the Archer-Williams and harbor triangles.

Just as the boats were finishing, a sharp wind squall, accompanied by a small whirlwind, struck the outer harbor, cutting across the land end of the finish line in a path about 50 yards wide. The wind picked up the top of the water and whirled it around, but luckily the small craft in its path came through without damage.

Little George Wiley Real Giant in Bike-paced Game

By FRED C. LANE

MORE old-time athletes have broken into prominence this year than ever before. Each sport has its veteran. Baseball has Jack Quinn. Track has DeMar. Tennis has McLoughlin, and the bike game points to George Wiley with pride.

With the exception of McLoughlin Wiley is the oldest in active competition. The former messenger boy—that was his occupation before taking up bike racing for a livelihood—is in his forty-third year.

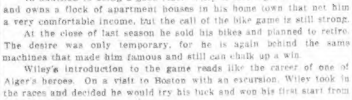
The little Syracuse rider—he is only 5 feet 4 inches—is still plugging along behind the chugging motors with the same success that made him the greatest favorite the game has ever known.

In addition to being a good rider Wiley is also a good business man and owns a flock of apartment houses in his home town that net him a very comfortable income, but the call of the bike game is still strong.

At the close of last season he sold his bikes and planned to retire. The desire was only temporary, for he is again behind the same machines that made him famous and still can chalk up a win.

Wiley's introduction to the game reads like the career of one of Alger's heroes. On a visit to Boston with an excursion, Wiley took in the races and decided he would try his luck and won his first start from a fast field.

He joined the pace game later and was soon on his way to fame.



In his long career Wiley has won many big races. He held the world's title for two years and has won a number of American championships. Wiley is a confirmed bachelor. His aged mother is his only sweetheart, and to her he attributes all his success.

The big test for little George comes tonight when he meets Chapman, Carman, Keenan, Gaffney and Gastman in the American Cup championship at the Beach oval.

THREE RACES AT GREENFIELD

Greenfield, July 26.—Three good classes, all fast ones, will be the card offered up to the light harness fans at the fair grounds this afternoon: the 2:12 pace and the 2:12 and 2:15 trotting events. All three races have filled out nicely with plenty of contestants and calibre.

Twelve heats were raced yesterday before the three stakes were settled. Baron Forbes came through with a fine win in the 2:18 pacing stake after Lady Couchman had won the first whirl and The Tank had grabbed off a couple, then the "Baron" set sail and in close finishes won the event.

Coseline accounted for the 2:15 pace after Bin Maxie had won the opening heat. Harry Crater, driver of Bin Maxie, was suspended for fifteen days for indifferent driving back of the latter. The Jersey trotter Pongee Frisco won the 2:19 trot, racing one of the miles in 2:12½. The attendance was unusually light considering the excellent brand of racing of the past three days.

Gilmore Entries

Philadelphia, July 26.—W. E. Garrett Gilmore has cabled his entry in the quarter-mile dash association singles and senior doubles events of the national regatta at Springfield, Mass., August 8 and 9.

SAM SMITH MAY BE REFEREE

There will be a conference today at which the referee for the finishing bout between Angelo Taramascchi and Stasiak has caused considerable interest over the referee question. The grapplers were agreed on one point and that one was that a New England man must be master of ceremonies within the

UPROAR WHEN JUDGES REVERSE DECISION

Paris, July 26.—Nat Pendleton, former American amateur heavyweight champion wrestler, and Robert Roth of Switzerland, wrestled an hour to a draw. The judges first gave Pendleton the decision by one point, but then reconsidered and declared the bout a draw. This changing of the decision caused an uproar among the spectators.

FIX DATES FOR THE DAVIS CUP DOUBLES PLAY

A series of test matches to decide the strongest available doubles team to represent the United States in the coming Davis Cup challenge round will be staged within the next few weeks. The selection of the singles players is almost automatic.

With this in mind the selection committee has mapped out a definitive program of test matches which will be considered and passed upon at the first meeting of the committee, which will be held Saturday, August 2.

The committee has in mind at this time six combinations which they expect will appear in these test matches. These consist of Bill Tilden and Dick Williams, Wallace M. Johnson and Clarence Griffin, Vincent Richards and Francis Hunter, the Kinsey brothers, Karl Behr and Dean Mathey, Lewis White and Louis Thalheimer.

According to the present plans, the committee will tentatively name the players to represent the United States in the Davis Cup challenge round on or about August 20, although the Cup defending contest will not be held at the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, until September 11, 12 and 13.

GRAND CIRCUIT RACES AT KALAMAZOO CLOSED

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 26.—The Grand Circuit meeting at Recreation Park came to an end with the racing of an abbreviated program of three races, the free-for-all pace having been declared off on account of a lack of starters.

Theodore Guy, which has been beating the three-year-old pacers with regularity this season, won his fourth straight race when he romped three heats off in front of the field in the juvenile event, the feature race of the trio.

There was a nasty spill in the second heat when Marion C. and Clara Barton Bingenwood fell, but neither of the drivers, Walter Candler and Sandy Taylor, were injured.

46 POLO PONIES ARE ON WAY FROM ENGLAND

London, July 26.—The 46 ponies which the English polo team will use in the international matches with the United States left today on board the steamer Minnetonka in charge of Jim Faulkner, who had charge of the mounts for the English team in 1914.

Faulkner said the ponies were a much better lot than the victorious English team had in the matches of ten years ago. He thinks that England has a good chance of regaining the international cup.

Lieutenant-Colonel T. B. Melville, No. 1, of the British team, was a passenger on the Minnetonka.

MANN IS WINNER OF INGLELOWE TROPHY

Manchester, Mass., July 26.—The finals in one of the most interesting golf tournaments that have taken place on the Essex Country Club links was played for the Inglelowe trophy, presented by George A. Dobyns. Rev. W. George Mullin of Manchester was defeated by W. T. Mann, 6 and 5. L. T. Mann won the senior championship, defeating E. E. Williams.

U. S. NET TEAM STARTS HOME TODAY

By VINCENT RICHARDS
OLYMPIC TENNIS CHAMPION

Paris, July 26.—The members of the American Olympic team arrived here yesterday from San Sebastian, where they enjoyed a delightful stay at the Palace of the King and Queen of Spain. Helen Wills did not accompany the Americans to the famous Spanish watering resort. They will sail for home today on the Antiarlde.

The match between the Americans and the Spaniards resulted in a victory for our team, 5 to 1.

The game between Alonso and myself aroused unusual enthusiasm among the Spanish followers of the game. The score 4—6, 6—2, 6—1 tells the story of a great contest in which I was exceedingly fortunate to win. The King and Queen were present at all the matches.

The King expressed the sentiment that tennis was the best medium through which good fellowship could prevail in international affairs. Alonso, the best Spanish player he looked upon as the sports ambassador to America.

H. Norris Williams, captain of the American Olympic team, will be out of the game for two months. The injured ankle he suffered during the Olympic games means that he will not be able to take part in the important matches in the United States.

Spain and France will meet in the Davis cup play soon and according to form, France should win. Personally I believe France will meet the United States in the challenge round this Fall.

CADDIE GOLF MATCH TO BE HELD AUGUST 26

The Massachusetts Golf Association announces that the Caddie Golfers' championship tournament will be held at the Oakley Country Club, Watertown, Tuesday, August 26. The play to be open to caddies, who have not reached their sixteenth birthday, from all clubs belonging to this Association, but not more than two may represent any club.

The tournament will consist of thirty-six holes medal play.

Prizes will be given for the best and second best scores.

Drawings and starting times will be published in the Boston newspapers, August 23.

LATE ARRIVALS HOLD UP POINT JUDITH PIER

Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 26.—It was originally planned to start the polo season at Point Judith Polo Club yesterday, but on account of Dennis e pe rsonage not having arrived one of the teams the first match for the 12-goal championship has been postponed until next week.

The intercollegiate team, comprising J. H. Whitney, Yale; H. Baldwin, Yale; W. H. Jackson, Princeton; and C. F. Kent, Harvard, were out practicing yesterday and certainly looked like a four that will be hard to beat. Baldwin, Jackson and Kent are captains of their college teams.

SNODGRASS IN 'MET' NET TITLE FINALS

New York, July 26.—Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles and Gerald Patterson of Australia reached the title round of the metropolitan turf court championship on the courts of the Crescent Athletic Club.

Snodgrass defeated Donald Emerson of Orange, N. J., 6-3, 6-1, 6-1, while Patterson advanced through the kindness of his Davis cup teammate, Pat O'Hara Wood.

Outsteadying the Australian team captain most of the way O'Hara Wood was within an point of the match in the fourth set, when he decided to retire and give Patterson the opportunity of meeting Snodgrass in the title match.

JOHNSON AND SECKEL PLAY FOR GOLF CROWN

Chicago, July 26.—Harrison E. Johnston of St. Paul, four times Minnesota champion, and Albert Seckel of Chicago, Western champion in 1911, will battle over the Hinsdale golf links today for the championship of amateur golf championship as the result of two hectic rounds today in which both displayed good, bad and indifferent golf, and won by the same narrow margin of 1 up in 36 holes.

Johnston defeated Burton Mudge of Chicago University, 3 up. Universal golfer, and Seckel eliminated James Manton of St. Louis, trans-Mississippi champion.

CANTABS CHALK UP TENTH STRAIGHT WIN

North Cambridge won its 10th straight game in the Twilight league race by trouncing Dilboy, 8 to 0, for the second time in the second half of the series last evening at Tufts Oval.

Jay O'Connor led the batting with three hits out of five. Gauriseau was second with two hits. Freeman of Dilboy got a pair of wallops, one a triple, and Traynor came through for two singles in three trips up.

Famous Fighting Machine Wrecked

CARPENTIER'S sun has set.

Gorgeous Georges has fought his last fight.

The famous French fighting machine is all shot to pieces and the boy who was once the terror of the ring is only a shadow of his former self.

Carpentier should hang up his gloves. He is done in the roped arena. To fight on would only mean more misery and more suffering, and he was too good and too game a battler to continue.

He can go on fighting, but he is no longer a drawing card and he will take more punishment in the next few months—if he continues to box—than he took in all his proud years of fighting—and from rivals who would not dare to face him when he was "right."

Georges Carpentier

Carpentier has gone the limit. His claims that he was fouled and robbed in the Tunney bout will not go with the fans.

His story of being double-crossed by Siki attracted some attention and later his sprained ankle in the Gibbons' bout was taken with a grain of salt, but his latest alibi is the last straw.

Criqui—George's fellow countryman—knew when he was licked and quit. Carpentier is well fixed with this world's goods and the most merciful thing that can be done is to force him to retire now.

He has a clean record to date—let the fight fans help him to keep it unsmirched.

J. B. GILLOOLY.

The accompanying photographs show the French idol tottering from the ring after Tunney had him out on his feet while the other picture shows Ted Kid Lewis well known to local fight fans, down and out—a one-blow knockout—in his bout with Carpentier.

SPORTS WRITER WILL TRY RUNNING CLUB

Syracuse, N. Y., July 26.—Sale of the Syracuse club of the International League to Richard Guy, former sports writer of Pittsburgh, Pa., virtually has been agreed upon to take place within the next 10 days, it was announced today.

Under the terms of the sale the St. Louis Cardinals, half owners of the local club, reserve the right to take any six players at the close of the present season. The six who are to be selected were tentatively announced today as George Makin, Tommy Thevenow, Wilbur Swansboro, Fred Frankhouse, Vernon Parks and Arthur Reinhart.

MARKERS WILL WARN BATHERS AT CITY POINT

Acting upon a suggestion from the Boston American, Mayor Curley has ordered Park Commissioner James B. Shea to have more channel markers placed along the beaches in South Boston as danger warnings to bathers.

Told about the drowning there of little Antonio Brunzetti of Roxbury, who waded into the channel, Mayor Curley sent his hearty co-operation to the American's campaign for safety signals.

Mayor Curley has also approved the appointment of three new lifeguards, making a total of nine additional City of Boston guards within a few days.

The placing of more danger signals along the treacherous channel, which has not only claimed two little victims this month, but has also proved a trap to several others who were saved, and the appointment of more lifeguards is another victory for the American.

The existing danger markers at South Boston are white barrels each one nearly a tenth of a mile from the next. The new markers will be much closer together, so that bathers will instantly recognize their danger when nearing the channel's edge. Mayor Curley declared he will stop at nothing to make the Boston beaches safer.

The beach in South Boston, known to some as Carson Beach and to others as "the Strandway," stretching from the Mosquito Fleet Yacht Club to the new Columbus Park bathhouse, will be protected by twelve Boston American volunteers in uniform.

Among the additional volunteers who offer to help protect this beach is John J. Sullivan of Newman street, South Boston. Sullivan is well known in that district, where he is a candidate for the Legislature from Ward 11. It was he who worked valiantly to resuscitate little Tony Brunzetti who was drowned in the channel before George Cudahy, city lifeguard, took up the flick.

The need of grappling irons for the beach has also been pointed out by those who worked to recover the boy's body. The only set available when the disappearance of the boy was reported was a set at L street which were obtained after the loss of valuable time.

NEED GRAPPLING IRONS.

Every city lifeboat should be equipped with a small set of grappling irons, in order that a body may be recovered quickly.

Frank Vigneau of Cambridge, a lifeguard with twenty years' professional experience in Greater Boston and throughout the country, is another volunteer who will be a member of the Boston American corps. He will also be a Red Cross life-saving instructor and will train volunteers at Revere Beach during the week of August 4.

Vigneau has saved scores from drowning and is equipped physically to battle the roughest water. His latest rescue was two nights ago at Lower Mystic Lake, off Little Sandy Beach, a spot unprotected by guards.

The American will provide two guards for Little Sandy Beach, besides protecting City Point, Savin Hill, Tenean Beach, Freeport Beach, Dewey Beach and North End Park, the "Boston beaches."

Other spots that will be protected are Winthrop Beach, the Charles River in Cambridge, in Dedham and in West Roxbury: Revere Beach, Nantasket and the Atlantic and Wollaston beaches.

Six expert instructors have been linked with the American's organization. These instructors will continue to work with volunteers. This Summer's corps, which will be limited to sixty, in order that an efficient dependable corps may be established, will be increased in the future under expert training.

City Point will be the scene of a drive for additional members during the coming week. Drives will be held at the Dorchester beaches later, but swimmers from Tenean Beach, Freeport street and Savin Hill are requested to report at City Point if possible.

Harold R. Barr of Winthrop is busy organizing a corps for Winthrop which will eventually make that beach one of the best protected in New England. He is a hard worker for the American Red Cross life saving corps and is willingly giving his time to pass his expert knowledge along to others.

Gaylor W. Gedney, Red Cross instructor at the Boys' Club in Charlestown, has joined the American's corps. In addition to training men and boys at the Club pool on Green street, which the club has kindly offered for use in this campaign, Gedney is spending three evenings a week at Forest River Park pool in Salem, a city pool, where he is laying the foundation for a new section of the Boston American corps and teaching Salemites who want to learn the efficient Red Cross methods of saving lives in the water.

The junior boys, under seventeen, who have volunteered, and the girl volunteers are also being organized. The Boston American organization will be rounded into a three-fold corps. These boys and girls are being requested to pass their knowledge along to others, so that the beaches will be made safer.

NASHUA CHILD DIES AFTER 2-STORY FALL

Nashua, N. H., July 26.—Robert Lachance, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lachance of No. 63½ West Hollis street died from injuries received when he fell from a second-story window today and struck his head on a concrete sidewalk.

LEXINGTON IS DEVELOPING RAPIDLY

With the advance of the Summer season the demand for building sites also seems to continue unchecked. This is particularly true in the cities and towns which have to offer those individual inducements lacking in other localities of less desirability.

The present year has shown much activity in Lexington. Last year witnessed the completion of many desirable homes of the better type. This year to date has been none the less brisk.

Land buying for home building in this historic town has been most encouraging. One particular development in Lexington, that of Farmhurst, has been exceptionally active, 24 new houses being erected.

This property is suitably restricted the plan of the owner, Neil McIntosh, No. 294 Washington street, Boston, being to create Farmhurst into a residential community with rural attractiveness.

This property is geographically in the centre of Lexington, situated on the State road, and is but ten miles distant from the heart of Boston. Fair Oaks, adjoining Farmhurst, has just been opened for sale. This latter property also is owned by Neil McIntosh.

Fair Oaks is suitably restricted to maintain an agreeable residential community. It has an average elevation of 300 feet above the sea. Nine parcels have already been sold.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

ROBERT FULTON went to England in 1786 to become a portrait painter and became an inventor instead. Born in Little Britain—which is now called Fulton—Pennsylvania, of very poor parents, he was given a scanty education and forced to earn his own living at an early age.

Jonathan Hulls is credited with having patented the first steamboat in 1737. But no one was made of it. It only inspired other men to attempt to make a better boat.

Marquis de Jouffroy, a Frenchman, born in 1751, perfected Papin's engine and he said to have built the first practical steamboat. But he hadn't time to prove its practicability, for the French revolution drove all into America.

As soon as Fulton decided to become an engineer, he was inspired with all sorts of inventive ideas. He was particularly interested in canal construction and obtained a patent for substituting canal locks with inclined planes. He went to France during the Revolution with plans for a submarine and a steamboat, and told Napoleon:

"If you will support me you can have the most powerful navy in the world."

His submarine, the "Nautilus," was given a trial in 1801, but it did not make a deep impression on Napoleon.

Fulton returned to America and succeeded in interesting Robert R. Livingston, who had been granted the exclusive rights for navigating the New York waters with steam vessels, in his steamboats. And in 1807 the "Clermont" started sailing between New York and Albany.

Fulton was not the inventor of the steamboat, as is sometimes supposed. But he was the first man to perfect the inventions of others and put the steamboat to practical commercial use.

In 1814 he built the "Fulton," the first steam warship, for the United States government.

The following year Robert Fulton died.

When you put your finger on one side of your nose and thereby discover that the other nostril is obstructed don't be tempted to try to blow out the obstruction.

Dr. Mahoney.

When you do this you are liable to force the germ-laden air — bacilli-us and all — into a n d thereby infect the middle ear, or the cavities in your cheek bones or above the roof of your nose.

It is, as it were

These are all serious conditions and once established are difficult to treat.

The probabilities are that they occur most frequently from blowing the nose in an improper and irrational way.

The only proper and rational way to blow the nose is to blow it and not pinch it. Which is to say, simply adjust your handkerchief to your open nostrils and blow.

But do not permit the secretions to accumulate as they are likely to do above three bony shelves on the inside of each nostril. If these secretions cannot be dislodged by the simple methods given, a local treatment or two by your physician will either entirely relieve you or give you a diagnosis for other proper treatment.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

What is the best treatment for bunions? B. A. R., Revere.

The first thing to do is to be fitted with proper shoes,—having plenty of room for the toes. In a very severe case, an operation may be done, but it is not generally necessary.

I would appreciate it if you would give me advice as to whether you think that a person with heart disease should refrain from all exercise. MRS. G. A. E., Boston.

You should be guided by the advice of your family physician in this regard. Speaking generally, a patient should do no work during the acute symptoms. Later, they may take such exercises as they can without becoming short of breath.

Is an injury ever the cause of neuritis? I injured my arm last year and have been told that this may be the cause of my neuritis. A. B. P., Waverley.

The type of neuritis which you describe probably comes from your injury. Any strain or injury to the arm sometimes brings on neuritis.

ON THURSDAY NIGHT, Georges Carpentier endured desperate punishment without flinching. Americans of the 100 per cent, red-blooded, he-man, Nordic type sometimes underestimate the courage of Frenchmen and other Latins. They will learn something from Carpentier's willingness to take cruel punishment. And Carpentier wasn't teaching boxing in camp 3,000 miles from the war. He spent four years in the trenches, whence some fine "Nordic" prizefighters were safely absent.

CHARLES M. SCHWAB will build six-wheel trucks that won't break down and will compete with railroads for all but the very long-haul freight. If Schwab undertakes it, he will do it. He needs something to take the place of battleship building and armor-plate making.

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY may issue certificates paying only 2 per cent. interest. That would be extraordinary financing. Yet as it would mean that Uncle Sam can borrow money as cheaply as it can be borrowed today by any speculator in Wall Street. Two per cent. is the price of "call money."

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

An ear of wheat and an ear of corn promise to determine the result of the election for President of the United States in the year of 1924.

A transformation in sentiment is being wrought by the extraordinary rise in the market value of farm products. Not only have wheat, corn, oats and cotton advanced sharply, but heifer beeves are offered for fast approaching delivery at the highest prices of the year. Cattle growers have also seen their prices advance more substantially. July delivery in New York has been back around the 40 cents level, while future deliveries have ranged from 28 to 29 cents a pound.

The big-hearted thing that has been going on in Wall Street has been inspired mainly by the course of events on the farm. Wall Street has also developed more hopefulness over the political prospects and the outlook for Europe. Mounting bank reserves have likewise played a part in booming things on the stock and commodity exchanges.

After a two long winning pyramiders find it difficult to get a bet-ting.

The romance of the honey bill melon was told during the writer's recent visit to Texas. Last year, when the product first made its debut, the few growers received a return of from $200 to $500 an acre. Enough seeds were saved to plant 2,000 acres this year, while next season 10,000 acres are to be the goal.

Fort Worth and Tarrant County are to-day busy celebrating "Honey Ball Week," the next fruit having had its birth just outside of Fort Worth and having been brought to the attention of the world by the Fort Worth Record. It promises to prove more profitable than any gold mine. The railroads alone are eager to buy more than can be produced because the melon can be loaded aboard the dining cars, across the continent and back, if need be, without suffering any damage. A melon can stand the use of these means without bruising it. Yet inside the fruit is soft and luscious.

The man who can bring forth a delicious variety of new fruit surely deserves to rank with him who makes two blades of grass grow where only one grew before.

Now that immigration has been all but shut off, where is America going to get enough wage-earners in coming years?

Most of the relatively few immigrants are common laborers. But whence will come the adequate supply of skilled artisans, men trained to ply a trade?

America has an unique institution that is doing its best to meet this situation. Years ago Edward J. Davis became the 243d member of the Moose when that infant fraternal organization was started. He liked its aims, threw himself whole-heartedly into its activities, became its director general, built up until now he has 600,000 members, four of every five of whom are working men and now has over $32,000,000 assets. Next week the Moose Convention is to be held in New York, attended by delegates from every city in the United States and Canada as well as others from various parts of the world, including South Africa.

Would you not be convinced of having developed such an organization than being selected a member of the President's cabinet? Jim Davis is.

STOCKS STEADY IN NEW YORK TRADING

Stocks were steady for the week end in Wall Street trading. Aqueduct Water Works reached nine points. There were gains of a point to 3 points for Rock Island, American Sugar Refining, South Porto Rican Sugar, Cuba Dominican Sugar, Rock Island, Utah Copper, S S. Kresge, Pipe and Delaware & Hudson.

New Highs were recorded for Brooklyn Union Gas, Montgomery Ward, Associated Dry Goods, General Electric, Kennecott Copper and Public Service of New Jersey 8 per cent. preferred.

Practically every railroad on the list will soon have some connection with the Van Sweringens in Wall Street opinion, while new reports of the hiring of Delaware & Hudson with those Cleveland promoters. The one most reliable report evidently is that which connects the Van Sweringens with Erie.

As first told in these pages last January, the Van Sweringens are according to the best authority working for and with the banking interests known as the "Interests on the Corner" and the First National Bank of New York people. The First National banks are always regarded as the Erie Railroad. Definite announcement of how the Van Sweringens will finance their deals is awaited for the next fortnight and will be received as most important and significant financial news.

Trading in the New York bond market was lively with public utilities most in demand, rail and equipment bonds trailing somewhat behind.

Stocks Display Firm Tone in Trading in Boston

Stocks displayed a firm tone in week-end trading on the Boston Stock Exchange.

Earlier Saturday selling was apparently exhausted Friday, for the stock closed the week up more than 2 points above Friday's last sale.

Coliseum & Arizona was the top per features, mounting more than 2 points.

Warren Bros. and United Shoe were fairly active and fractionally higher.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER ACTIVITY FORESEEN

Recent hesitation in International Paper is generally regarded as a speculative manoeuvre on the part of those new interests which recently took the market for the leadership in hand. "They seem to shake out their weak following," is the explanation. As soon as those interested are ready, it is claimed, there will be a renewed outburst of activity in the shares is so followed by what the company plans along its water power development possibilities. International Paper, like Central Leather, and others, have a big asset to go. Apparently some common stockholders may expect much.

QUOTATIONS RISE IN COTTON FUTURES

Week-end New York cotton futures were higher, July sold at 28.25, up 28 points, December at 27.45, up 50; January at 27.50, up 50.

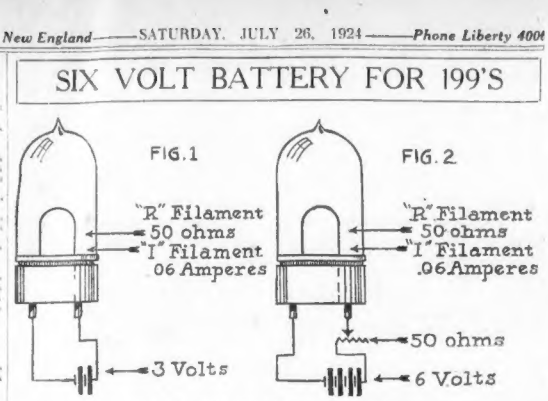
SIX VOLT BATTERY FOR 199'S



RHEOSTAT SAVES TUBES

The UV199 tube, designed for three volts, may be safely used on a six volt battery if a fifty-ohm rheostat, or some other resistence is used. The determination of the proper resistance is by means of a simple formula that every radio fan should know.

On the Air Last Night

By THE LISTENER

Listened to some dinner concerts last evening which were very pleasing. Shortly after six o'clock I tuned in on WMAF, who was broadcasting the Waldorf Astoria Hotel concert orchestra from New York City. The selections furnished were of a classical nature. The quality of tone with this orchestra is superb, and with allowances made for the slight bit of static, it comes through easily loud enough for the loud speaker. WBZ, broadcasting from their Hotel Kimball studio, also came through with excellent quality. During the early evening this station does not fade perceptibly, and consequently the dinner concert is a program which can be safely depended upon.

During the Citizen Broadcast from WGI there was a lot of code interference right on his wave. This interference was caused entirely by the harmonic in WBZ's wave, which is right around 240 metres. WHF, the United Fruit Company's station in Boston, has another harmonic on 800 metres, which renders reception from KDKA more or less difficult. There is little doubt but what code interference of any consequence to special fans is caused by this station. As far back as last Winter, officials of this station said they were working upon a method of overcoming
